THE death of the late learned and ingenious Mr. WARTON happening in the very moment of this Publication, the Editor hopes he ſhall not be accuſed of preſumption in embracing the opportunity of acknowledging the honour of his friendſhip. By Mr. WARTON's judgement of the work he was firſt induced to undertake it, by his friendly opinions encouraged in the proſecution of it, and by his kind admonitions aſſiſted in its completion. He leaves it to abler hands to deſcribe thoſe various merits, the loſs of which are powerfully felt and expreſſed in the affectionate regrets and reſpect of his friends and the public. To his Friends he was endeared by his ſimple, open, and friendly manners; to this Univerſity by a long reſidence and many ſervices; and to the Public by the valuable additions, which have been made by his talents to Engliſh Poetry, Antiquities, and Criticiſm.*

FASTI OXONIENSES;

OR,

A COMMENTARY on the ſupreme Magiſtrates of the Univerſity of OXFORD;

NAMELY,

Of the CHANCELLORS, COMMISSARIES, PROCHANCELLORS, or VICECHANCELLORS, and PROCTORS.

NOTWITHSTANDING the Cantabrigians (1) have been ſo bold as to derive their Catalogue of Chancellors from Amphibalus the Martyr, who, as they ſay, was the firſt Rector of the Scholars of Cambridge City, An. Dom. 289, and from others who interruptedly ſucceeded, viz. Mauritius in the time of Conſtantine the Great, An. Dom. 310, Kynotus in the time of K. Arthur, an. 517, Edbertus in the reign of Cedwall, an. 678, Almericus in the reign of Cadwallader, an. 690, &c. and I know not whom, (all received upon uncertain truſt by the firſt author of thoſe matters, Nich. de Cantilupo, who died An. Dom. 1441) yet I ſhall not preſume to do as they have done, but inſert only thoſe that I find from record, not in the leaſt to be doubted by many.

To paſs by therefore St. GERMAN, St. GILDAS, MELKINUS, NENNIUS, KENTIGERNUS, and others, who lived in the times of the Britains and Saxons, reported by a very good Exemplar (as Camden ſaith) of Aſſerius Menevenſis (2) to have ſtudied in Oxford, and there to have made good

Orders and Statutes for the Academians, which they would not, nor could have done, unleſs probably they were the ſupreme Rectors or Governors of the Scholars there, I ſhall begin with St. GRYMBALD, whom few or none there be, that will or can deny, but that he was Rector or Governor of the Schools of Oxford, and the Scholars thereof, and from him deſcend to others, as I find them mentioned in record. But before I begin, I think it fit to acquaint the reader with ſome things which may perhaps be neceſſary to be known by him before he enters upon the following Comment, and thoſe are;

I. That the CHANCELLORS have anciently been written and ſtiled Rectors and Maſters of the Schools, and Rectors and Maſters of the Scholars, as may be farther ſeen in this Comment, an. 1211, 1294, &c.

II. That their place and office hath been derived, ſo far as concerns their confirmation, from the Dioceſan, the Biſhop of Lincoln, and their nomination and election by the Regents and Non Regents of the Univerſity, continuing ſo till towards the latter end of Edw. III; and then they were always after elected and confirmed by the ſaid Regents and Non Regents only.

III. That their confirmation by the Dioceſan, and election by the Academians, was ſometime every year, and for the moſt part every two. The like alſo was it, when both election and confirmation came into the hands of the ſaid Academians, which continued till the office of Chancellor became perpetual and for term of life.

IV. That the ſaid office in ancient time was only borne by ſuch that were reſident in the Univerſity, as by Maſters and Doctors of Hoſtles or Halls and Colleges, Monks, Fryers, &c. afterwards by Biſhops, and at length ſometimes by perſons of the laity, of whom Sir JOHN MASON was the firſt.

V. That ample privileges have been granted to them by popes, kings, and biſhops, as I have told you ſeveral times in this work, whereby their authority became great, and their perſons much reſpected and honoured.

VI. That for their help in adminiſtering juſtice, and doing ordinary and common things belonging to their office, they have had Deputies allowed them (ſometimes more and at other times fewer) called anciently Vice-gerents and ſometimes Commiſſaries, by which laſt name I find them mentioned (1) in the 1ſt and 2nd of Edw. III. Afterwards they were altogether called ſo, but now and for many years ſince, Vice chancellors, and that too when the Chancellors have been reſiding in the Univerſity.

VII. That for the more honour of the office, have ſervants been allowed to wait upon thoſe that bear it, within the precincts of the Univerſity, and to uſher them in all public aſſemblies, ſuch I mean that we call Beadles, each of them (in number ſix, beſides a Vergerer) carrying a ſilver ſtaff erected in their hand, which office is very ancient, and beyond record, mention being made of them (how many at one time I find not) in the reign of Henry III, and before.

(1) [In TURRI Schol. Oxon.] In LIB. PRIVILEG. OXON. per Harum, MS. Fol. 51. f. b.

VIII. That

VIII. That in the vacancy of the Chancellorſhip, the Senior Theologus, called Cancellarius Natus, then reſident in the Univerſity, did anciently exerciſe all juriſdiction within the precincts thereof, otherwiſe belonging to the office of Chancellor, by giving oaths, keeping the Court, ſetting the ſeal to public inſtruments, preſiding in the election of ſucceeding Chancellors, appearing in ſuits commenced againſt the Univerſity, proving of wills, and granting adminiſtration of the goods of privileged perſons, which continued till the reign of Edw. VI, at which time the office of Senior Theologus began to decline.

As for the PROCTORS (whoſe office is as ancient for aught that I know as that of the Chancellor) are men of great power and rule in the Univerſity, eſpecially as to thoſe who have not obtained the title of Maſter. Their election hath been anciently from the number of ſenior Maſters, not by the Biſhop of Lincoln, but by the Regents and non-Regents in Congregation, who alſo, with the Chancellor, confirmed and admitted them. And as they were taken from the ſaid ſeniors, ſo alſo was there great care had that one ſhould be a Northern and the other a Southern man, becauſe of the conſtant diſcord between thoſe parties, and eſpecially that partiality againſt either party (if both Proctors ſhould be of one party) ſhould be avoided.

The matters that theſe officers were anciently to look after, and ſee that they were thoroughly executed, were theſe (as in our ancient books (1) it appears) viz. to proceed and [exerciſe] their authority:

But in theſe things their power did not, nor doth, reſt only; but in other matters, as in keeping the peace of the City, in having authority over and correcting the people of the Laity, if they are found guilty of ſtubbornneſs, irreverence, ſaucineſs to them, of unſeaſonable tipling in public houſes, and ſuch like: of which matters, and other power that they have (though leſſened by the new Statutes) being too tedious now to recite, I ſhall proceed in my work. In the beginning of which, though I am but ſlenderly accommodated with the names of Chancellors, Commiſſaries, and Proctors, ſuch is the defect of our Records, yet the candid Reader I hope, (eſpecially thoſe verſed in Hiſtories and Antiquities) will excuſe me, and not be apt to impute the fault on me, but time, the devourer of all things.

An. Dom. 883, or thereabouts, St. GRYMBALD occurs Rector or Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxford, after it had been reſtored by K. Alfred, as is elſewhere ſhewed.

Vicegerent or Commiſſary, or Deputy, or by what name ſoever he was called at this time, ...

Proctors { . . . . . .
Mr. { . . . . . .

The names of which officers (for whom theſe places are left) appearing not for this year, neither for divers following, I ſhall ſpare their room till I find them occur.

An. Dom. 889. Chancellor BEATEGRAVIUS, if any faith or truſt might be given to the Black Book (1) of Cambridge; for among certain obſervations that he hath of K. Alfred, I find this—'Videns ergo &c.' 'He ſeeing therefore that the Scholars, which he brought to Oxford, continually ſtudied in the compoſition of the Laws, and expoſition of the holy Scripture, appointed them for their Rector Grymbald, Rector and Chancellor of the City of Cambridge, who being burdned with old age, permitted him to ceaſe from his office, an. 889, and in his place the noble Beategravius was made by the good will of the Scholars, Rector and Chancellor of Oxford.'—But let the truth of this remain with the Author, for if we conſider that the Laws were not in being in K. Alfred's time, nor many years after, as may be ſeen in the Annals or Hiſtory, an. 1149, and that alſo Grymbald was not Biſhop of

(1) Script. per Nich. de Cantilupo circa an. 1440. MS.

Wincheſter,

Wincheſter, which he confidently reports (2) in the ſaid Black book, there is no credit at all to be given to his obſervations.

Theſe two ancient Chancellors of the Univerſity being thus produced, and ſaid to be before, it remains that we ſhould enquire of their ſucceſſors after, the Norman Conqueſt, whether they are known by the names or titles of Rectors, or Chancellors, or Maſters of the Schools, or any other name whether general or peculiar, and tranſmit their almoſt obliterate memories to Poſterity. For which end therefore I ſhall do my endeavour by beating of obſcure paths to obtain my deſire, and give a ſucceeding ſeries (though ſometimes imperfect) of our Faſti.

1122, or thereabouts, Chancellor or Rector of the Schools ROBERTUS CANUTUS, as in the Hiſtory this year; which office of Rector being no other, as I ſuppoſe, than Chancellor, I ſhall here ſet him down as the firſt Rector of Oxford, or of the Schools of exerciſe there, after the coming in of the Normans. He by the Name of Robertus Crickladenſis, Prior of the Monaſtery of St. Frideſwyde in Oxford, did about this time (2) give to the Abbey of St. Mary of Cirenceſter, in which he before had taken upon him the habit of a Canon Regular, his land in Cricklade.

1134, or thereabouts, Chanc. ROBERT PULLEYN as it ſeems. See in the Hiſtory this year.

1150, or thereabouts, a Chancellor occurs under that title only, without a a name, as it appears from the Chirograph (3) of one Robert Foliot, Rector of the Moyety of the Church of Rowleſham or Rouſeham in Oxfordſhire; wherein 'tis ſaid, that the Chancellor of Oxford, with the Prior and Dean of Abendon, were delegated by the Pope to be judges of a controverſy concerning part of the tithes of the ſaid town, &c. Now in what time the ſaid R. Foliot lived, appears plainly from another Chirograph (4) which ſpeaks to this effect:

'Be it known to all &c. that I Robert Foliot give to Oſney that land of my fee which lieth in the great ſtreet in the borough of Oxford, in St. Michael's pariſh at Northgate, held of me by Auſten, prieſt, &c. in knowledge of which gift Wygot the Prior gave to me half an ounce of gold, and to my wife one mark, &c:' which Wygot being made Prior of Oſney, an. 1138, and continuing in that office till 1168, (in which time Oſney from a Priory was made an Abbey) plainly ſhews the time of the ſaid Foliot. See this matter more at large in the Latin Copy.

1201. Chancellor under a general name, as appears by this obligation or Bond (5)——'Sciant univerſi per preſentes nos Cancellarium Univerſitatis Oxonie cum toto cetu Magiſtrorum ejuſdem, teneri et per preſens ſcriptum firmiter obligari, Priori et Conventui S. Frideſwide Oxonie et eorum Succeſſoribus in ducentis libris monete Anglicane, &c. Dat. Oxonie in domo noſtre congregationis in Feſto S. Jacobi Apoſtoli An. Dom. 1201.' Though the name of the ſaid Chancellor occurs not in this Writing, nor in that an. 1150, yet the ſucceſſion in the office is proved.

1211. Chancellor or Rector of the Schools MASTER ALARDUS, in the ſame ſenſe with ROBERT CANUTUS: the reaſon of which I have told you in my Hiſtory an. 1294. As for this ALARDUS I find mention of him to this effect in an ancient writing (1) which I engliſh thus: —'Know ye as R. Prior of Oſney, and H. Dean of Oxford ſaith, that the controverſy which is between Hugh the Lord Abbot and Convent of Abendon on the one part, and Maſter Euſtachius, Rector of the Church of Ceſterton (2) on the other, concerning certain tithes iſſuing from the 40 acres which are ſituated in Bruerio de Ceſterton, (3) which Jeffry St. Maure holdeth of the fee of William de Lega ſenior, in Ceſterton, was by the authority of Pope Innocent III, controverted in our preſence (Mr. Alardus Rector of the Schools, our brother judge in this matter, ſufficiently excuſing himſelf by his letters) and brought to a final concord after this manner, &c.' At the end of the ſaid writing it is thus ſaid, 'This compoſition was made before us in the Church of St. Mary in Oxford, on the morrow after the invention of the holy croſs, in the 13th year of the Pontificate of Innocent III, that is, An. Dom. 1211.' Which, that it may be the better underſtood, it muſt be ſuppoſed, that the ſaid Pope ordained upon this queſtion of tithes three judges in England, namely, Mr. Alardus, Chancellor of the Univerſity, R. Prior of Oſney, and H. Dean of Oxenford; but Alardus for fear of the Biſhop of Lincoln, his Dioceſan, (then Hugh Wallys, who was too ſevere and rigid toward the Academians) by whom perhaps he was no otherwiſe admitted to his office than by the name of Maſter of the Schools (though ſaluted in the Pope's bull the Rector) refuſing to appear in the ſaid cauſe, and therefore excuſed himſelf by his letters, the deciſion of the whole matter was left to the ſaid two judges. And this I ſuppoſe was the true and likely cauſe of the excuſe, as from that which I have elſewhere delivered appears. To theſe matters I ſhall add, that Robert Groſteſt who ſucceeded the ſaid H. Wallys in the ſee of Lyncoln, wrote one or two (4) Epiſtles to Brother Alardus Provincial Prior of the preaching Fryars in England, and that alſo about the ſame time Mr. Alardus, Subdean of Wells, (5) conveyed certain land in the pariſh of St. Mildrid in Oxford (in which pariſh he ſometime living, or perhaps was born, was ſirnamed thence, as I elſewhere (6) find) to Thomas the ſon of Wydo, but whether either of these two were the same with this our Alardus, Rector of the Schools, I cannot safely determine.

1214. Chancellor under a general name, mentioned in the bull (1) of Nicholas, Bishop of Fraschati; concerning the punishment inflicted on the Burghers of Oxford for hanging of certain clerks, &c. dat. 7 cal. Jul. this year. The originals of which transactions are, with their autographs, kept to this day in our Archives, and in certain Registers or statute books of the University, not only as a memory of that horrid fact, but to be made use of and taken out as occasion serves. Among them is the first composition (that I have yet seen) made between the Scholars and Burghers, esteemed a monument of so great an account by our predecessors that they decreed the original of it to be kept in the Treasury of Lincoln Church, as the only χειμήλιον of the University. [See before in the Annals under this year.]

1220. Chancellor, Mr. Lewes de Chapirnay, D. of D. if any truth may be given to that instrument of dotation of the Scholars of Mr. William of Durham, mentioned before in University College.

1221. Chancellor under a general name, as from a papal bull (and the process that thereupon followed) which partly runs under this form, appears.(2) 'Honorius Episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Archidiacono Wigorn. et Cancellario et Decano Oxon. Lincoln. Dioces. Salutem et Apostolicam benedictionem. Ex parte Abbatis et Conventus de Osney, &c.' The Bull was for the designing of the said persons therein mentioned, to be judges for the examination of certain witnesses concerning the tithes belonging to the monastery of Osney: 'dat. Lateran. 3 cal. Apr. an. pontif. 5.' There is also another ancient writing (3) depending on it, wherein the said Bull is by way of inspeximus word for word recited, and what also the said three judges acted in the cause, and what witnesses they examined, and such like, under their seals, all done in St. Mary's Church in Oxford, on the morrow after the octaves of the Apostles St. Peter and St. Paul, an. 1221: which is the fifth year of P. Honorius III. Two other instances of the same kind, dated also at the same time, I could produce (4) to prove this Chancellor under a general name, to have undergone that office this year, but because I aim as much as I can at brevity, I shall omit them. However, what is here and before said, doth make much as well for the antiquity as dignity of the chief Magistrate of the University, that he should be thus designed a judge by the Pope in causes of so great weight. Now if any think that the Chancellor here mentioned was not of the University but of the Bishop of Lincoln, he or they do greatly err, for there never was any such person of this place different from the Academical Chancellor, that had jurisdiction here. Neither do I find among the Muniments of the University any mention

mention of the Chancellor that had belonged to the Dioceſan of Lincoln, at leaſt in that ſenſe which uſed to be ſaid of William de Monte, an ancient Chancellor of Lincoln, thus (1):

'Incipit hic noſtri pulchrum numerale Magiſtri
Et Cancellarii Nicol (2) de monte Gulelmi.'

I now come to two eminent and famous Scholars of this Univerſity (almoſt coetaneous) who from good right ought to obtain a place here, although when they bore the faſces of this ſupreme magiſtracy with us, I have as yet no certainty. One of them was St. EDMUND, ſurnamed le RICHE, whom Matthew Parys (3) ſtiles 'Prælector in Theologia Oxoniali.' But whether he did undergo the office of Chancellor before or after the obtaining his Lectureſhip it doth not appear, or that he was Chancellor an. 1234, in which year he was declared Archbiſhop of Canterbury (as in a certain old Catalogue of Chancellors is delivered) I ſcarce think it credible. The other is ROBERT GROSSTEST, whom, though I find not in any ancient Catalogue of our Chancellors to occur, yet that he bore the office under that, or the title of Maſter of the Schools, I have manifeſtly proved in my Hiſtory, an. 1294. He became Biſhop of Lincoln 1235, and was ſecond to none of his predeceſſors or ſucceſſors either for learning or piety.

1230. Chanc. under a general name.
Commiſſary or Vicegerent ELYAS de DANEIS.

The ſaid nameleſs Chancellor occurs in the Bull (4) of P. Gregory IX, directed to him the ſaid Chancellor, the Abbot of Eveſham, and Dean of Oxford, for the deciſion of certain controverſies, concerning tithes between W. the parſon of Wdeton or Wood-Eaton in com. Oxon. and the Abbot and Convent of Malmſbury, dated at Perugia 4 cal. an. Pontif. 3. The Vicegerent occurs in the deciſion (5) itſelf, for the Chancellor being abſent, or elſe waving that employment, it was performed by him and the Dean of Oxford, the principal judge of the matter, in All Saints Church, Oxon, on the Vigils of St. Peter and St. Paul, an. 1230.

1231. Chancellor, Mr. RALPH, Archdeacon of Cheſter, as in a certain reſcript of K. Hen. III, in the Memorables of Rob. Hare, (6) dat. Jun. 23, an reg. 15. But the ſaid Hare, who hath written the Catalogues (7) of the Chancellors of both the Univerſities, doth, for the reſpect to his Mother the Univerſity of Cambridge, inſert St. Amphibalus as the firſt Chancellor or Rector thereof an. Dom. 289, with others following to the Norman Conqueſt, from the authority of the Black book, and ſuch like frivolous ſtuff.

But

But the Oxonian Epoch of Chancellors he begins with this Mr. Ralph, with no memory had of thoſe either before, or after the Norman Conqueſt, to his time. Whether he places him as the firſt in time, which he found among the records in the Tower of London, and no otherwiſe, I know not. However that he, and others of his opinion (if any ſuch) are deceived, in placing, and ſuppoſing this Mr. Ralph to be the firſt Chancellor of Oxford, ſhall appear from that which follows. When the Biſhop of Lincoln did argue with this Chancellor (or at leaſt his ſucceſſor Ralph de Semplyngham) concerning the uſe of the ſeal, (whether public or private I know not) and thereupon a troubleſome queſtion aroſe between him and the Univerſity, Adam de Mariſco wrote an Epiſtle (1) to the Biſhop about it. In which, among other things, be pleaſed to take notice of theſe words following—— 'Signo illo quod dicitur Univerſitatis Oxon, quo in ſimplicitate ſua ſicut et plures anteceſſorum ſuorum, uſus eſt, de cætero ſi juſſeritis nequaquam uſurus et ad nutum beneplaciti veſtri, ſuo cedet officio, &c.' Thus Mariſco; but by the ſequence of the words, it appears, he contends not about the matter. It ſeems it hath not been doubtful to any Oxonian and (I believe) others, but that ſeveral predeceſſors of this Chancellor uſed ſeals, and to me it plainly appears, that he neither innovated any thing in his ſeal, or uſed another or the form of another, but only that which his Anteceſſors in the ſame office uſed. And yet notwithſtanding from this Chancellor, as from the firſt of all, the ſaid Hare did begin his Catalogue of them for the Univerſity of Oxford. This year alſo a Chancellor under a general name occurs in a certain ſcript (2) dat. on the Vigils of S. Bartholomew the Apoſtle, whereby he, the Archdeacon of Worceſter, and Dean of Oxford, were deputed judges concerning the compoſing of a difference between Oſney and E. Rector of Horſpath near Oxford concerning the leſſer tithes thereof, &c.

1233, or thereabouts, Chancellor Mr. RALPH COLE, the ſame perhaps with Mr. Ralph, Archdeacon of Cheſter in the year 1231. The mention that I find of him is only as a Witneſs to a certain Charter (3) whereby Sir Vivian de Bray, or the ſon of Ralph, gave to Oſney his land joining on the weſt ſide of the church-yard of St. Peter in the Eaſt; which land did ſometime belong to John of Oxford, Biſhop of Norwich. The names of the witneſſes that follow after the ſaid Charter are Peter the ſon of Thorald, Mayor of Oxford, Rob. Oein, Philip le Mulner, Stephen the Son of Henry the ſon of Simeon, Henry his brother, Maſter Maurice, Maſter Richard of Cornwall, Robertus Mercator, Laur. Halegod, Thomas Submuro, Laurence Wiard, and Mace, Provoſts of Oxford.

1239. Chanc. Mr. JOHN de RIGATER, as from that Charter mentioned before in Univerſity College Schools, appears. Which Charter being dated 3 cal. Nov. this year, the ſaid Rigater, with Jeffry de Stocwell Mayor, John Sewy and Hugh Hardyng, Provoſts of Oxford, were Witneſſes.

1240. Chanc. Mr. RALPH de HEYHAM, Chancellor of Saliſbury, as it appears in a writing of 25 H. III, mentioned (2) to be under the ſeal of him the ſaid Heyham, as Chancellor of the Univerſity.

1241. Chanc. the ſame, RALPH de HEYHAM, as it ſeems.

1242, or thereabouts, RICH. de la WYKE or WYCHE, P. of D. and Canon Law, as by ſome it is reported. (3) He was afterwards Biſhop of Chicheſter, and canonized by the Pope for a Saint.

1244. Chanc. SIMON de BOVILL again, as in a compoſition (4) between the K. and the Univerſity, concerning the Chancellor's cognizance of Pleas in contracts of moveable things. To which are the ſeals of the ſaid Simon, Thomas, Archdeacon of Lincoln, John, Archdeacon of Cornwall, and Fryer John de Bacun. After him I find ſeveral Chancellors under general names, which I ſhall now omit, and proceed to thoſe that are under their own.

1246. Chanc. Mr. GILBERT de BIHAM, as appears by this writing: 'Omnibus ad quos, &c.' 'To all whom this writing (5) may concern, &c. Mr. Gilb. de Biham, Chancellor of Oxford, ſendeth greeting in the Lord: Know ye, that I, in the year of Grace, 1246, at the Feaſt of St. Nicholas, have received of the Canons of Oſney two marks from the church of Fulnell, to be diſtributed among the poor Scholars of Oxford, according to the Ordination of Robert, Lord Biſhop of Lyncoln, &c.' This Mr. Biham was Chantor and Canon of Wells, (6) and living in a tenement in the pariſh of St. John Bapt. Oxon. oppoſite to the Church thereof, was from him called Biham Hall, afterwards corruptly Beame, and Boheme Hall.

1252. Chanc. (7) Mr. R. by which letter muſt be underſtood (as I ſuppoſe) RALPH de SEMPLYNGHAM, or SEMPYNGHAM rather, as in the life (8) of Gilb. de Sempyngham. The author of which ſaith, that one Ralph ſucceeded Gilbert in the government of the church of Sempyngham; but whether it be the ſame Ralph, that we have put down for Chancellor, I know not.

1253. Chanc. Mr. RALPH de SEMPRINGHAM, as from part of certain annals (1) going thus is teſtified. 'Anno MCCLIII, &c.' 'In the year 1253, on the ſeventh of the Ides of Febr. died William de Mancheſter, Archdeacon of Lichfield, to whom ſucceeded Ralph de Sempryngham, Theologiſt, Chancellor of Oxon.' And in another place I find mention of the ſaid perſon thus—'Eodem anno, &c.' 'In the ſame year (1254) in the month of Febr. Mr. Ralph de Sempryngham was elected Dean of Lichfield church by the Canons thereof, and afterwards confirmed by the Lord Roger de Weſeham, Biſhop of Lichfield.' He died 1260; about which time he founded the Chantry of St. Andrew, in the Cathedral Church of Lichfield, valued yearly to be worth 5l. In the Epiſtles (2) of Robert Groſteſt, I find one written, before he was made Biſhop of Lincoln, to Fryer Agnell, the Miniſter of the Minorities of Oxford, and to R. Archdeacon of Leiceſter; which R. whether he be the ſame with this Ralph I know not.

1255. Chanc. Mr. WILLIAM de LODELAWHE, as in a certain Charter, (3) whereby Gilbert the Abbot and Convent of Einſham, did grant to the Prior of Schyreburne, in the Dioceſe of Wincheſter, all their right in an houſe in St. Peter's pariſh in the Eaſt in Oxford, which was belonging ſometime to Mr. William de Drochedathe, &c. The Charter is dated this year, on the tueſday after Quali modo geniti, and witneſſed, beſides this Chancellor, by Mr. Giles de Brudeport, Archdeacon of Berkſhire, Adam Feteplace, Mayor of Oxford, and others.

1256, or thereabouts, Chanc. Mr. RICHARD de SANCTA AGATHA, of whom I find mention in an Epiſtle to him, (4) written by Fryer Adam de Mariſco; wherein the ſaid Adam deſireth him to promote the petition of Mr. Simon de Valencinis or Valentiis, Canon of Lincoln, to borrow 40l. of the money of Mr. William of Durham, kept in the hands of the Chancellor, Proctors and Maſters. And 'tis probable, that he being thus courted by Mariſco, might about this time either bear the Office of Chancellor or Commiſſary. One Mr. Robert de S. Agatha I find witneſs (5) about this time to divers evidences, his name being in the firſt place, and ſet before that of the Mayor of Oxford. Whether he was Chancellor I know not; ſure I am that he was Archdeacon of Durham, and, if I am not miſtaken, ſucceeded Mr. William, an. 1249.

1262. Chanc. Mr. THOMAS de CANTELUPO, as it appears in a certain writing (6) of the Abbot and Convent of Oſney, concerning the habitation of the brethren called Penetentiarians, or de Penetentia Jeſu, made this year.

1263. Chanc. the ſame THOMAS de CANTELUPO, as it ſeems, who about this time was (as 'tis reported) Doctor of the Canon Law. In the year 1265 he was made Lord Chancellor of England; but that office he held but a ſhort time. Afterwards he retired to Oxon, and lived there ſeveral years. Of this Chancellor you may be pleaſed to read theſe things following from a certain author. (1)—'Unde ad Univerſitatem Oxonie primo, poſtmodum Pariſiis ſe transferens, rationalem ſcientiam aggreditur, et philoſophie ſecreta rimatur, Magiſtralem Cathedram aſcendens. Oxoniam demum rediens, Juris Canonici Doctor et Cancellarius Univerſitatis efficitur: in quo quidem officio in cauſarum diſcuſſionibus prudens inveſtigator extitit, in judicio juſtus, in ſententiis proferendis diſcretus, in omni actione compoſitus, et morum honeſtate preclarus, &c.' Thus the ſaid Author, agreeing verbatim with another, (2) which hath this title, or theſe words following, written in the beginning of his book—'Explicit ſecunda pars in tertio volumine Legendarum collectarum per Fratrem Petrum de Calo de Calgia ordinis Prædicatorum.' But the aforeſaid author, Capgrave, addeth, that he, when K. Hen. III was dead, returned to Oxford, and was created D. of Div. under Rob. Kilwarby, that was afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and in the year 1275 was conſecrated Biſhop of Hereford, and after his death canonized by the Pope. But before he was created, he did, according to the manner, ſtudy while he was young at Paris, under the tuition and ſpecial benefaction of John Peckham, afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, as in certain letters of that Archbiſhop, (3) written an. 1281 to the Biſhop of London, appears: For at that time he was by him pronounced excommunicated. After the death of the ſaid Thomas de Cantelupo, which was at Civita Vecchia in Italy, an. 1282, his body was carried to Hereford, but his heart to the Monaſtery of Aſhrugg in Bucks, where by the care and coſt of Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, Founder thereof, it was repoſed in a tomb of admirable workmanſhip on the north ſide of the choir, and afterwards had in very great veneration. By which tomb or near it the ſaid Earl was afterward buried.

1264, or thereabouts, Chancellor Mr. HENRY de CICESTRE, as in an indented Chyrograph (4) between him and the Univeſity on the one part, and Rob. de Stanton on the other, concerning the demiſing of a tenement to the ſaid Rob. in St. Giles' pariſh in the ſuburbs of Oxon. To which Chyrograph are witneſſes Nich. de Stocwell, Mayor, Will. de Ew and Geoffry le Mercer, Provoſts of the town of Oxford, [&c.]

1268. Chanc. the ſame, (1) N. de EWELME, as in the Annals under this year.

1269. Chanc. Mr. THOMAS BEK, as in a certain Convention (2) between him and the Univerſity on the one part, and Wymund le Lyngedraper of Oxford and Agnes his Wife on the other, &c. to which are witneſſes John de Coleſhall, Mayor, Jeffrey le Orfeure and Philip de Ewe, Provoſts or Baillives of Oxford. In a certain charter, (3) dated on Monday next going before the feaſt of S. Matthias the Apoſtle, 51 Hen. III, Dom. 1266, I find that one Jacob, the ſon of Mr. Moſey, a Jew of London, by Henna his wife, conveyed to Walter de Merton, ſometime Chancellor to the King, his houſes in St. John Baptiſt's Pariſh in Oxford, for the building of an Hall or College for his Scholars, that he had lately ſettled at Meandon in Surrey. But becauſe Mr. Antony Beke, and his brother Thomas Beke did then live and abide in the ſaid houſes he therefore made this condition with the ſaid W. de Merton, that he ſhould ſuffer the ſaid Antony and Thomas to inhabit in the ſaid houſes from the feaſt of St. Michael following 'till three years after were expired, by paying to his Warden and Scholars that he was then about to ſettle in thoſe, and other houſes adjoining, an hundred ſhillings yearly. This is the effect of the Charter; and I thought fit to mention it, becauſe the ſaid Antony (ſtiled in the Charter Dominus Antonius Beke) and Thomas his brother were then ſtudents in the ſaid houſes, and that the former was afterwards Biſhop of Durham, and the other Chancellor of this Univerſity (as before 'tis told you) afterward Treaſurer of England, and at length, being very old, became Biſhop of Lincoln an. 1319.

1270. Chanc. the ſame, THOMAS BEK, as from another writing, in the place here quoted, (4) appears.

Commiſſary (5) Mr. Rob. Steeton, D. of D.

1273. Chanc. Mr. WILLIAM de Bosco, as in the accompts of one Ralph Stokes, Chamberlain of the Town of Oxford, 2 Edw. I; (6) wherein under the title of Expenſes I find it thus ſet down—'Item in duobus Pikerillis miſſis Mro. W. de Boſco Cancellario, quarta ſeptimanæ Quadrageſimæ, iiij ſol.' For in theſe times, and ſince, it was an uſual cuſtom for the Burghers of Oxford, to preſent the Chancellor with gifts, eſpecially at his entrance into his office, as from divers places is evident. This Mr. WILL. de Bosco was one of the firſt Fellows of Merton College, as in their writings I find, and ſo have I put him into the Catalogue of them, which I have with very great labour compoſed from multitudes of writings in that College Treaſury and Chequer, and alſo from their Regiſters.

1274. Chanc. the ſame, W. de Bosco, as by circumſtance it appears.

1276, or thereabouts, Chancellor Mr. EUSTACHIUS de NORMANVYLE, Maſter of Arts and Doctor of Decrees, as Leland (1) and others report. In a certain Charter dated 1251, I find theſe witneſſes, viz. Mr. Euſtachius de Normanvyle, Frater minor, Mr. John le Noble, Mr. Roger de Barthone, &c. by which it appears that then he was a Minorite or Franciſcan. About this time, (for the particular year appeareth not) JOHN de PONTISARA, who was Biſhop of Wyncheſter, an. 1280, is reported to have borne the office of Chancellor of our Univerſity; but whether true or not, I cannot yet find; ſure I am, that a little before his death he ſhewed himſelf a worthy Benefactor by giving (2) them a cheſt with 200 marks therein (called afterwards Wincheſter Cheſt) for the relief of poor Scholars. In perpetual memory of which, and for the health of his ſoul, the Maſters decreed, that a ſolemn anniverſary ſhould be performed for him on the Vigils of St. Nicholas.

1280, or thereabouts, Chanc. Mr. HENRY de STAUNTON, Profeſſor of the Canon Law, as in Univerſity College is evident. (3). He was now or lately, as I ſuppoſe, Vicar of the Church of St. Peter in the Eaſt.

1281. Chanc. (4) the ſame, H. de STAUNTON, as in a writing, dated this year in die Jovis in ſeptimana Penticoſtes, and in another on the ſecond of the nones of May. (5)

Proctors Mr. (6) { Rob. de Burgo

1282. Chanc. (7) Mr. WILLIAM de MOUNTFORT, Profeſſor or Doctor of the Canon law, and Chantor of Hereford, and Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

1283. Chanc. Mr. ROGER de ROWELL or RODEWELL, as in a Chart. (8) dated 10 Jan. 12 Edw. I, ſent from the King to him the ſaid Chancellor for the taking off the ſentence of Excommunication from Robert Wells, Baillive of Northgate hundred.

1284. Chanc. (9) the ſame, R. de ROWELL. About whoſe admiſſion to this office a controverſy (10) fell out between the Univerſity and the Biſhop of Lyncoln. Whether he ſerved out this year, is doubtful, foraſmuch as one Mr. WILLIAM PICKERILL occurs Chancellor this year, as in an inquiſition de ſubtractionibus is evident. (11) The ſaid Rothwell (12) occurs Chancellor 2 Id. Dec. this year; at which time John Peccham, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, appointed him his Commiſſary to hear and receive the accompts of Sir John, the ſon of Guy, Kt. the Executor of the laſt Teſtament of Maud D'Oyly, his mother.

1287. Chanc. the ſame, HERVEUS de SAHAM, I think.

1288. Chanc. (5) Mr. ROBERT de WYNCHELSEY, Archdeacon of Eſſex, and of his time a perſon moſt learned. He was at length Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

1290. Chanc. (9) Mr. JOHN de LUDLAW, as in the ſaid Annals, an. 1290. He reſigned ſoon after, and Mr. JOHN de MONEMUTA, D. of Div. became Chancellor this year, as an Author (10) reports, and afterwards Biſhop of Landaff. As to the aſſigning the time of this Chancellor, I find ſome contradiction, and that chiefly, becauſe out of the Archives (11) of Lincoln Cathedral, 'tis ſaid that he was the next ſucceſſor to William de Kingſcote, as in the admiſſion of him by the Biſhop's letters, printed in the Latin copy, is evident. Either therefore no Chancellor ought to come between Kingſcote and Monemuta, or elſe the ſaid Chancellor (Ludlaw) muſt be ſuppoſed to have borne his office in a ſmall interval of time. (12) However it is, the Antiquary of Cambridge (13) (who hath ſtiled himſelf Londinenſis) is deceived in that which he delivers concerning the confirmation of this Chancellor running thus: —"Epiſcopus enim ita confirmare ſolebat; 'officium Cancellariæ Univerſitatis Oxoniæ tali Magiſtro in Theologia committimus, donec aliud dederimus in mandatis:' unde natum puto, quod diu is non

Cancellarius,

Cancellarius, nec ejus Vicem gerens Procancellarius, ſed Commiſſarius deinceps vulgo dictus ſit." (1)——Thus he, as if that office ſhould only belong to a Theologiſt, and not a Decretiſt, which the Statutes of the Univerſity permit; or as if that Magiſtrate was not known or heard of among us by the name of Chancellor, who either dying or reſigning, he that was next according to ſeniority, was called Cancellarius natus; his Commiſſary alſo being appointed by him the ſaid Chancellor, and not the Biſhop of Lincoln. No wonder therefore it is that the ſaid Antiquary is ſo blind in the affairs of Oxford, when in thoſe of his own Univerſity he is ſo quick-ſighted. That alſo he is ſo ignorant of the difference between the Chancellor of this Univerſity may eaſily be underſtood from his own words, (2) which he hath of the chief Magiſtrate of the Univerſity of Cambridge.—'Huic Academiæ qui præfuit (ſaith he) ad multa ſecula Rector dicebatur: poſtea Cancellarius, noſtra ætate Vicecancellarius, et Procancellarius appellatus eſt, Vicarius Cancellarii, de quo poſtea fuſius, nam Cancellarius hodie privatus homo non eſt Academiæ, ut olim, ſed ex Magnatibus aliquis, qui favet literis, cujus loco jam præficitur Procancellarius, &c.'——From whence we cannot but ſee, how he doth confound together the Chancellor and Vicechancellor, or Prochancellor, when in the mean time he omits the ancient word Commiſſary, which ſo often occurs in the books and muniments of each Univerſity.

He gave divers Manuſcripts to the Library of Merton College, as certain inſcriptions in the front of them teſtify, having been (as 'tis probable) educated in that Houſe. His name alſo, with the title of Archdeacon of Leiceſter put to it, occurs, with others of the ſaid College, in a parchment writing in their Exchequer.

Upon what account the ſaid Harcla is reputed a Benefactor to the Univerſity, I as yet ſcarce know, unleſs it was for his zeal in obtaining divers privileges for the Univerſity. 1314. Chanc. the ſame. In the beginning of this year in the month of April (as it ſeems) the office of Chancellor of this Univerſity being then or ſuddenly to be void, the Biſhop of Lincoln (5) ſent out his letters under a grievous anathema dat. 4 nones of April, that none either as Cancellarius natus, or otherwiſe, exerciſe the juriſdiction of Chancellor in the Univerſity until ſome perſon was admitted to that office by him. The reaſon why, he tells us not in thoſe letters; and whether they at preſent were obeyed by the Academians is doubtful, becauſe in the reſcript of Edw. II, concerning the confirmation of the privileges of the Univerſity of Oxford, dat. March 11 following (an. 8 Reg.) is direct mention of Henry de Harcla, then Chancellor of the ſaid Univerſity. And whether that inhibition of the Dioceſan was in following years obſerved, eſpecially as to the election of the Chancellor, ſeemeth not to be from one or two (6) ſtatutes concerning elections, publiſhed by the Academians on the feaſt of St. Gregory, an. 1443. In which mention being made of the ſenior Theologiſt, we muſt underſtand him to be no other perſon than Cancellarius natus; who according to the ancient cuſtom of the Univerſity, is to govern it when the Chancellorſhip is void, deduced and brought down even to the days of our grandfathers.

He is reported by a certain Author (3) to have been Chancellor; but the year when he tells us not: his Author for it, is (4) that (as it ſeems) of the Ecloga of MSS. For therein among thoſe mentioned in the libraries of Balliol, and Merton College, one hath this title, 'Nottingham Cancellarius Oxoniæ contra Errores Pelagii.' Which book, the ſaid Author not only aſcribes to this Richard, but alſo to William de Nottingham, who flouriſhed an. 1336, whereas Baleus remembereth not at all Richard de Nottingham, nor attributes that work to William.

1317. Chanc. Mr. JOHN LUTTERELL, a Dominican, Dr. or Profeſſor of Div. and Canon of Saliſbury, as it appears in the (5) ordination of the Cheſts of Gilbert de Routhbery. He occurs alſo in the (6) commendatory letters of K. Edw. II to Pope John XXII, dat. 27 Dec. an. reg. 11; wherein of him thus—'ut quatenus eidem Clerico noſtro in negotiis, ex parte ipſius veſtræ ſanctæ paternitati plenius exponendis gratiæ ſinum aperire, voſque ſuper fælici expeditione eorundem reddere dignemini gratioſos &c.'

1333. Chanc. (7) the ſame, whom I find written in one of the places here quoted, by the name of RICHARD (not Ralf) RADYN. So that whether it may be underſtood for Richardus Radyn, or Richardus filius Radulphi, is doubtful.

Commiſſary General this year, or thereabouts, was RICH. fil. RADULPHI or FITZRAUF, D. of D. or elſe of both the Laws, and Dean of Lichfield. He is reported by ſome (8) authors, ignorant of the names and diſtinctions of Magiſtrates and officers of the Univerſity, that he was Chancellor thereof, and that he, according to (9) another author, bore that office this year; though nothing of him occurs in the Archives of the Church of Lincoln, or the Univerſity. The Writer (10) of the Acts and Monuments, who ſometimes reports things more true than the reſt, concerning this perſon, tells us that he, being Archdeacon of Lichfield, was deſigned Commiſſary (not Chancellor) of the Univerſity by K, Edw. III, but with no reference to the year when 'twas. The reaſon why his name occurs not with us, was without doubt, the conſtant reſidence of the Chancellors of the Univerſity in this age and long after. Under, and by whoſe name, (not by Commiſſaries) were all things in the Univerſity acted and done. His effigies in ſacerdotal veſtments over it, was not long ſince to be ſeen in Lichfield Cathedral in the firſt window, on the ſouth ſide of the Choir, with this inſcription by it, 'Richardus Radulphi filius, Armachanus, hujus Eccleſiæ Decanus.' He continued Dean there till 1347, [when he became Archbiſhop of Armagh,] and then one Simon de Griſely ſucceeded.

1335. Chancellor, Mr. ROBERT de STRATFORD of Merton College, Archdeacon of Canterbury, and soon after Lord High Chancellor of England. In his time the ancient prophecy of Merlin concerning the translation of the University to Stanford, did take effect: But in a short time by his endeavours annulled, and the Scholars called back to their old seat, as in the Annals this year may be more fully seen. What remaineth to be spoken in his praise (which occurs in a certain Epistle (3) of the University to the Archbishop of York, [Wolsey] about the year 1514) I shall here insert:—'habuerunt nostri majores suos Mecenates, tibi tamen longe impares, nec conferendos, ut reverendum Leycestriæ Priorem (meaning Ph. de Repingdon) et præclarum Robertum Stratford Cantuariensem Archidiaconum, qui valentes plurimum apud suos augustos, sue memores altricis matris, eam quam plurimis decorarunt ornamentis et præclaris accumularunt beneficiis, &c.' Thus the University; and without doubt he deserved the said commendation, as certain Chancellors in some other respects did, namely, THO. GASCOIGN and HENRY SEVER, for the scholastic discipline which they encouraged and promoted. Furthermore, as for this Chancellor, he, by reason of the troublesome factions between the southern and northern scholars, did for the reformation of them (as is by one (4) reported) appoint one of the Proctors to be always a Southern and the other a Northern man. This ROBERT de STRATFORD was brother to John de Stratford, Archbishop of Canterbury, both born at Stratford on Avon in Warwickshire, sons of Robert de Stratford and Isabel his wife, and both bred in Merton College.

Which controverſy the Antiquary (9) of Cambridge takes not only an occaſion to mention, but objects it as a great reproach to the Oxonians; as if (as 'tis probable) they were not ſo well inſtructed as the Cantabrigians were about theſe times in making uſe of thoſe feigned Diplomas or Bulls of P. Honorius, Sergius, and Eleutherius againſt the great power and injuries of their Dioceſan. But let it be as tis, the Oxonians had no other deſigns now or before, but what were honeſt and ſimple, and were ſo far from counterfeiting any Bull, that they would rather lay their privileges at ſtake, than injure their conſciences; though now if they had been minded, needed not ſo to

The ſenior Proctor was afterward Archdeacon of Cleveland, and Canon of the Cathedral of York, where he died, and in the ſaid church was buried an. 1379.

1367. Chanc. (1) Mr. WILLIAM COURTENAY, Doctor of the Civil Law, of Stapledon Hall, ſon of the Earl of Devonſhire, and deſcended from the royal blood of England, was invited (not elected) to take this office upon him in a full Congregation of Regents and Non Regents, on the thurſday next going before Pentecoſt: Afterwards ſolemnly admitted without any confirmation from the Dioceſan, being about theſe times aboliſhed. He was afterward Biſhop of Hereford, then of London, and at length Archbiſhop of Canterbury, [and Lord High Chancellor of England.]

(3) But the ſaid Chancellor ſerving out about half the year, Mr. WILLIAM WYLTON, D. D. ſometime Fellow of Ball. Coll. (afterward of Univerſity and Queen's) ſucceeded, and occurs (4) by the title of Chancellor March 5, (and before) this year.

1374. Chanc. (5) the ſame viz. Dr. WYLTON.

1375. Chanc. the ſame Dr. WYLTON; in which year he cauſed the book of Statutes belonging to the Chancellor, which was old and almoſt obliterated, to be new tranſcribed, being the ſame book which is now called the Chancellor's or Vice-chanc. book, noted on its dorſe with the letter A. In the beginning (6) of which, in a large capital Letter is drawn to the life the Effigies of K. Edw. III, ſitting in a Chair giving a Charter, (6*) with his ſeal thereunto, to the ſaid Chancellor WYLTON, who receives it kneeling in his doctoral habit of red colour. He is reported by (7) ſome to have been a writer, but upon my examination of the matter, I find it falſe; for the books attributed to him, eſpecially that entitled 'Queſtiones de anima,' Thom. Wylton, who lived before his time wrote it, as the Copy thereof in Balliol College Library atteſteth; which coming into the hands of the ſaid Will. Wylton, he gave it to the ſaid Library, as the inſcription on the cover thereof atteſteth, ſo that then he was the giver only, and not author or writer thereof.

1379. Chanc. (5) Mr. ROB. AYLESHAM, who two years before had undergone the Office of Commiſſary. But he dying in the month of Sept. or thereabouts, Mr. WILL. BERTON, D. D. now or lately of Merton College, ſucceeded.

Proctors Mr. (6) { John de Buritone / Richard Peſter.

Of what houſe the ſenior Proctor was, I find not, neither alſo of what the junior, when he bore his office, he having been of three Societies ſucceſſively, viz. of Exeter, Univerſity, and Merton.

1380. Chanc. Mr. WILL. BERTON, and not Pro-chancellor, as (7) one that often confounds and miſtakes the titles of the Magiſtrates of the Univerſity delivereth. He, this year, Oct. 2, obtained the King's breve (8) for the repairing the pavement of the Streets of Oxford. A great enemy he was to Wycleve, and his diſciples, as well in his writings as government of the Univerſity; who, if not by his vigilancy their career had been ſtopt, would have contracted greater force and authority.

1381. Chanc. Mr. ROBERT RYGGE or RUGGE, D. of D. and Canon of Exeter, as by his letters, (9) dated June 1 this year, ſent to one John Trevaur, Bac. of Laws, now living in Wales, whereby the ſaid Trevaur was warned to appear before him in St. Mary's Church on a day prefixed, to make anſwer in cauſe of a debt. aſmuch as he ſeemed now to favour Wycleve and his diſciples, Mr. ROBERT RUGGE before mentioned ſucceeded either about the latter end of May or beginning of June. He is the ſame, whom (1) Fox in treating of the articles of Wycleve, ſtiles Ryggeus, and after his manner, as I have before obſerved, calls him Chancellor, then Commiſſary, Pro-chancellor and Vice-chancellor. However it is, he by the name of 'Robert Rygge Chancellor of the Univerſity of Oxon,' was conſtituted (2) with John Lovell, Hugh Segrave and Robert Treſilian, Juſtices of the peace for the county of Oxford this year. Beſides theſe two Chancellors authors tell us of two more this year, and thoſe are, firſt, Nicholas Hereford (now or lately Fellow of Queen's College) as Walſingham (3) ſaith, but how it can be, I underſtand not, for at that time when the ſaid Nicholas, upon account of declaring his opinions, preached (4) at St. Frideſwide's Croſs in Oxford, May 15 this year, being then Aſcenſion day, Mr. ROBERT RUGGE was Chancellor (the chief part of the ſermon itſelf, which he delivered, entituled 'Sermo Mri Nicholai Hereford, S. T. Profeſſ. contra omnes ſtatus et gradus Eccleſiaſticos,' being examined and pronounced the ſame which he preached by a Public Notary, as his name to it teſtifieth) and therefore if ſo be the ſaid Nicholas did bear that office, it was but a few days before that of the Aſcenſion, becauſe the Chancellors were in theſe times choſen according to the ſtatute before recited, 'in feria tertia ante Pentecoſten:' Furthermore alſo, 'tis not likely, that after the ſaid ſermon was delivered, he ſhould bear that office, becauſe that for his opinions ſo declared he was cenſured, impriſoned and perſecuted. The other Chancellor was, as the ſaid Fox (5) conjectureth, William Rugge; but of him I know nothing, being the ſame, without doubt, with Robert Rugge before mentioned. Thus you have in one year's ſpace, four Chancellors, if the authors who report the two laſt, may be believed. However it is, ſo great was the difference in opinions, diverſity in preaching, and change of Governors of the Univerſity about theſe times, that it gave occaſion, without doubt, to an acute Sophiſter (6) now or lately ſtudying in Oxford, to argue in his ſophiſms thus—'Cras Cancellarius prædicabit; ergo qui eſt Cancellarius, vel qui cras erit Cancellarius, prædicabit &c.'

Commiſſ. Fr. PETER STOKES, D. of D. and Carmelite, as ſeveral authors (7) ſeem to intimate, he being appointed to confute the hereſies (as they were now called) of Wycleve.

The names of which Proctors, with that of Rugge, Chancellor, I find mentioned in a certain compoſition (1) between the Univerſity on the one part, and the Prior and Convent of St. Frideſwide's on the other, dat. Mar. 9, 6 Ric. II, which is this year. One Walter Diſh or Daſh alſo, being reported by ſome (2) to have been employed as a judge in examining the articles of Wycleve this year, I doubt not but that he is the ſame with the junior Proctor here ſet down, and the ſame alſo whom Baleus (3) and Pitſeus (4) do report falſely, and Leland (5) doubtfully, that he had received his academical education in Cambridge, [and was the Pope's Legate. (6)]

1383. Chanc. (7) Mr. ROBERT RUGGE again, D. D. Canon of Exeter, and Archdeacon of Barnſtaple.

1384. Chanc. the ſame, Dr. RUGGE, (8) as in a Compoſition between the Univerſity and Burghers of Oxon, concerning the freeing or exoneration of the Colleges of Univerſ. Merton, Oriel, Exeter, Queen's, Balliol, Canterbury, and New, from the paying of tenths, which by the care of the ſaid vigilant Chancellor was effected this year. There is alſo to be ſeen the like Compoſition for the exoneration of Magdalen College, made long after this time, whether as a College or Hoſpital, becauſe founded upon the ſite of that of St. John Bapt. Theſe and ſuch like Compoſitions are thoſe mentioned in the great Charter (9) of K. H. VIII, dat. April 1, an. reg. 14, wherein that King, ſpeaking of the manner of taxing the Pariſhes for tenths and fifteenths to the King by the Chancellor and Mayor together, and not ſeverally, ſaith, that they ſhall have power, 'affidendi et taxandi quamcunque parochiam in villa predicta et ſuburbiis ejuſdem, juxta et ſecundum quantitatem integram dicte ville et ſuburbiorum ejuſdem, taxatam, limitatam, et aſſenſam in ſcaccario noſtro, ad hujuſmodi quintamdecimam et decimam ſolvend. deductis et deducendis omnibus et ſingulis allocacionibus et ſolucionibus que ſolvi et allocari debent in parte ſolucionis vel allocacionis hujuſmodi quintedecime et decime, ratione aliquarum compoſicionum vel convencionum inter aliqua collegia ſive alia loca quecunque infra villam et ſuburbia predicta, ſive inter aliqua alia loca extra villam et ſuburbia ejuſdem ex una parte, et Majorem, Aldermannos, Ballivos, et Burgenſes ville dicte ex altera parte fact. ſive fiend. &c.' The meaning of which words 'juxta quantitatem integram,' is, that this money for tenths and fifteenths ſhould be raiſed according to the rate, wherewith the Town of Oxford is burdened in the book of his Majeſty's Exchequer, and what that is, is well known.

ram Coſtard ‘ de libero tenemento,’ it was alleged among divers matters relating to the letting and ſetting of it, that there was no Chancellor of the Univerſity from July 12, 1405, till the tueſday going before the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt, 1406, but was governed by Dr. W. FARINGDON, the ſenior Theologiſt, or Cuſtos (as 'tis ſaid) of the Univerſity. Howſoever it was, ſure I am that the Pope this year granted the Archbiſhopric of York to the ſaid R. Hallum (he being then Chancellor) but being put by it, was afterward conſecrated Biſhop of Saliſbury, and at length made a Cardinal.

Commiſſ. Mr. (1) { JOHN WHYTEHEDE of Univerſity Coll. as it ſeems. JOHN ORUM, D. D. of Univerſ. College, a learned perſon of his time.

Proctors Mr. (2) { Walter Logardyn, of Merton Coll. Adam Skelton, of Queen's Coll.

After HALLUM had left the Chancellorſhip, which was about the beginning of the year, Mr. WILL. FARINGDON, the ſenior Theologiſt, governed till about the time of St. John Bapt. and then Mr. RICHARD COURTENAY, of noble parentage, ſucceeded. Upon whoſe ſupplication the King gave (3) to the Univerſity this year a great Croſs of ſilver, gilt. The aforeſaid Catalogue of Proctors (4) hath for this year

Proctors Mr. { Iſaac Jacob Peter Barcomb.

But how it can be ſo, I cannot diſcern, unleſs they were elected with COURTENAY, or that they were only Pro-Proctors.

1407. Chanc. (5) the ſaid Mr. RICHARD COURTENAY, afterwards the moſt noble and worthy Biſhop of Norwich. But he giving up his place in the beginning of this year, Mr. RICHARD ULLERSTON, lately of Queen's College, ſucceeded. His name I find at the foot of an accompt (6) of the Burſars of Univerſity College 8 Hen. IV, a little after the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, which is this year: and as it well appears, the accompts of that Houſe could not now paſs, unleſs the hand of the Chancellor of the Univerſity or his Commiſſary, was ſet to them.

Commiſſ. JOHN ORUM, D. D. as it ſeems.

Proctors Mr. (7) { William Duffield of Merton Coll. Richard Flemmyng of Univ. Coll.

As for the ſaid Proctors, the Senior of them was the Southern, and became afterwards Preb. of Wiſtow in the Church of York, and Archdeacon of Cleveland. The other who was the Northern, and Canon of York, cauſed this year (1) the old book of Statutes to be tranſcribed (being the ſame which is kept to this day as a monument in the Archives of the Univerſity, diſtinguiſhed by the letter C on its dorſe.) Which book, at the reſignation of his office, Ap. 28, he left to his ſucceſſors for their uſe. But the chief part of that, and of other books of the like nature, were, in the year 1634, remitted into the Book of Statutes now uſed, and chained in every College Library. The ſaid Proctor was afterward Biſhop of Lincoln (not Chancellor of the Univerſity, as Leland (2) ſaith) and the worthy FOUNDER of Lincoln College in Oxford.

1408. Chanc. Mr. WILLIAM CLYNT, (3) D. of D. and Chantor of Lincoln, now Fellow of Merton College. He died Feb. 17, 1424, and was buried at Lincoln in the body of the Cathedral.

Proctors Mr. (4) { Richard Collyng / Roger Gates of Mert. Coll.

Which Officers occurring from good authority (as below may be ſeen) thoſe therefore in Babington's Catalogue (5) are without doubt falſe, viz.

Chanc. Mr. RICHARD COURTENAY again.

Proctors Mr. { Rich. Flemmyng / Richard Tayler.

1409. Chanc. THOMAS PRESTBURY, Abbot of Shrewſbury, [again,] as in the confirmation of a certain Compoſition (6) between the Univerſity on the one part, and the Provoſt and Fellows of Oriel Coll. on the other, concerning the Congregation Houſe, joining on the north ſide of St. Mary's Chancel, dat. Mar. 17 this year.

Proctors Mr. (7) { Robert Aclom / Richard Baron of Mert. Coll.

But the author of Babington's Catalogue, which is very falſe in ſeveral of the ſucceſſions of Officers, hath Proctors Mr. { Ores John / William Symons.

1410. Chanc. Mr. WILLIAM SULBURYE, a Monk of Wobourn, whoſe name with the title of 'Cancellarius Univerſitatis Oxon,' is at the foot of an accompt (8) of the Proctors' or Burſars' Accompts of Univerſity College, paſſed by him a little after the feaſt of Pentecoſt, 11 Hen. IV, Dom. 1410. The ſaid THOMAS PRESBURY was Chancellor alſo this year, and preſent (1) at the burning of Wycleve's books at Carfax; ſo that 'tis probable the year was divided between them, SULBURYE enjoying the former, and PRESBURY the latter part.

Proctors { Richard Collyng
Mr. (2) { Roger Orſoworth.

1411. Chancellors were ſeveral this year, namely,

Firſt, RICHARD COURTENAY (3) before mentioned:

Secondly, JOHN BANARD, D. of D. a Friar of the Order of St. Auſten in Oxford, mentioned by the title of 'Cancellarius Oxon,' in an indenture (4) between him the ſaid Chanc. on the one part, and Will. Erburfield and Rob. Cheſylhampton, Collectors of a certain tax in Magdalen pariſh, granted lately by the Parliament to the King, dat. in feſt. S. Martini 13 Hen. IV, Dom. 1411.

Thirdly, Mr. RICHARD COURTENAY again.

Which change of Officers was occaſioned (as it ſeems) by Archbiſhop Arundell's Viſitation of the Univerſity, which he intended to make this year. There is another Chancellor for this year in Babington's Catalogue, namely, Mr. WILL. CLYNT, mentioned in 1408, but I ſuppoſe 'tis falſe.

Proctors { John Byrch of Univerſ. Coll.
Mr. (5) { Benedict Brent of Exeter Coll.

But the Catalogue (6) before mentioned hath theſe, viz.

Mr. { Robert Haclum or Aclom
{ Richard Baron of Mert. Coll.

And another (7) note dated in feſto S. Felicis (in the month of May) an. 1411, which day was the firſt of the Term, hath theſe,

Mr. { John Green

That the former were Proctors for this year is not to be doubted, and that alſo they were ejected and impriſoned, may be fully ſeen in the Annals or hiſtorical part for this year: therefore I ſuppoſe the ſecond Proctors ſucceeded for a time, and the other only Deputies.

1412. Chancellor, Firſt, Mr. WILL. SULBURIE, whoſe name (8) occurs at the time of Pentecoſt:

Proctors { Gilbert Kymer of Durham Coll. as it ſeems.
Mr. (3) { William Symond of Univ. Coll.

1413. Chancellor, Firſt, (4) Mr. WILLIAM SULBURY again.

Secondly, (5) Mr. WILLIAM BAROW, or BAROUGH, Doctor of Decrees, afterward Biſhop of Bangor [and Carliſle,] between which two the year was divided. 'Tis ſaid (6) alſo that THOMAS PRESBURY before mentioned was Chancellor this year, and at that time when the twelve Doctors of Oxon, ſent an (7) Epiſtle to the Synod of the Clergy in the Dioceſe of Canterbury concerning Wycleve and his doctrine, but how true I cannot yet diſcern.

Proctors { William Symmond } as before.
Mr. (8) { Gilbert Kymer }

1414. Chanc. Mr. WILLIAM BAROW again, his name (9) occurring at the feaſt of Pentecoſt. The author of Babington's Catalogue is pleaſed to tell us that Mr. John Snetiſham D. of D. was Chancellor this year, but the truth thereof I much doubt, becauſe John Snetiſham was not elected Fellow of Merton Coll. 'till about 1420, and therefore I take it to be Richard Snetiſham, a learned writer of his time, and a great enemy to Wycleve. However of him I find great commendation in a (10) gratulatory Epiſtle of the Univerſity to John Lacy, Biſhop of Exeter (of which place John Snetiſham was Canon and Chancellor) wherein they give the Biſhop many thanks for him. In Brook's grand (11) abridgement he is only written J. S. and no more: like to a note alſo in (12) another place, wherein I find Rich. de B. to have been Chancellor of Oxon about theſe times, utterly as yet unknown to me. Of what Houſe the ſaid Snetiſham was, I know not: ſure I am, that one of his name was Fellow of Mert. Coll. in the reigns of Hen. V and VI.

1416. Chanc. (1) Mr. THOM. CLARE, whoſe name occurs with the title of Chancellor after Pentecoſt. But the ſaid Catalogue will have Dr. BAROW to be Chancellor this year alſo.

Proctors { Robert Dinkely as before
Mr. (2) { Will. Andrew of Exeter Coll.

1417. Chanc. Dr. BAROW, as Hare (3) pleaſeth, who the next year was made Biſhop of Bangor, and at length of Carliſle. But he keeping the office of Chancellor not long, (or if at all this year may be a doubt) Mr. THOM. CLARE ſucceeded him. (4)

Afterward Bourchier became Archb. of Canterbury, and at length Cardinal ſub tit. S. Warham, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was Chancellor of the Univerſity. Hare (2) is pleaſed to tell us that Dr. Kymer was Chancellor alſo this year, when from many authorities it appears to the contrary. If he did bear that office at all, it muſt be in the beginning of this year, between the Annunciation and the third holiday before Pentecoſt, but that cannot be within, becauſe Bourchier (3) was Chancellor in the latter end of the laſt year.

Eugenius IV, to the end that he would be pleaſed to write to the King (to whom the ſaid Sever was Chaplain) that he would prefer him according to his merits; whereupon, being promoted, as I conceive, (2) reſigned his office in February; for then Dr. WESTKARRE, before mentioned, (3) became Cancellarius natus, and a little after upon his abſence Mr. JOHN ANDEVYR, (4) and likewiſe upon his, Dr. THOMAS GASCOIGNE, (5) the one occurring by that title the ſecond, and the other the thirteenth of March this year. In the mean time the Univerſity (6) ſollicited Mr. Richard Praty, Biſhop of Chicheſter (ſometime an Oxford Student) that he would be pleaſed to take upon him the Office of Chancellor; but he refuſing it, the ſaid Dr. GASCOIGNE was elected (7) the 14th of the ſaid month by the unanimous conſent of all Doctors and Maſters concerned in the intrinſic election of the Chancellor. As for the form of that and certain other elections in theſe times were thus: Four Maſters in each faculty (called in ſuch affairs by the names ſometimes of Doctors) were by the Chancellor or Commiſſary and Proctors admitted into the public Aſſembly; and being ſo done, they for the election of two Aſtantes or Inſtantes did take the votes of all Non Regent Maſters by ſcrutiny, three proclamations by the Beadle being in that time made, of which one was to alter or change (if any Maſter whom before he had named pleaſed) which two Inſtantes, after they were elected and lawfully admitted by the Chancellor and Proctors, they named four other Maſters for the intrinſic election; which being finiſhed, the ſaid Aſtantes and the four Maſters receded into ſome private place (ſuppoſe in one of the Chapels of St. Mary's Church) where the Chancellor and Proctors ſearching into the votes, one after another, did at length pronounce him elected, to whom they found moſt ſuffrages given. And ſo after the ſame manner was Dr. GASCOIGNE (deſcended of a worſhipful family, ſon and heir of Richard Gaſcoigne, Lord of the Manor of Hunsfleet in Yorkſhire) elected Chancellor. Afterward he enjoyed that office for a certain time as one not elected, becauſe that then he had not taken his oath; for having liberty given to him to deliberate whether he would take the office upon him, governed only as Cancellarius natus. In the mean time the Univerſity, who doubted that he would not take the Chancellorſhip upon him, they by their letters, wherein they much extol him, trouble the King (6) with the matter, ſignifying farther that he would be pleaſed to be an inſtrument for, or elſe command, him to take the office on him; but what ſucceſs the ſaid letters wrought I know not. However not long after, he took his oath and accepted of it, and being in the interval ſometime abſent, or in private receded, ROBERT BURTON, D. This year May 13th in Congregation then held, it was granted (9) by the Maſters that the honourable Dr. KYMER might remain in his office of Chancellor for the two next years following. The reaſon for it was, that foraſmuch as the executors of [Henry] Beaufort, Biſhop of Wincheſter, had given 500 marks toward the building of the new Schools upon condition that they might be finiſhed within five years after the gift, the ſaid Dr. Kymer, together with Elias Holcot, Warden of Merton College, had entered into bonds on the ſaid contract: (10) Which, though not performed in that time, yet the executors ſued them not, but ſuffered the remainder of the money (if any left) to be beſtowed on that edifice.

Jan. 2] kept the office till July 6 following, and then (1) reſigning it again, under the hand of a public Notary, in a Congregation of Regents, ſolemnized in the Chapterhouſe of St. Frideſwyde's Priory, the venerable Mr. THOMAS CHAUNDLER, D. D. Warden of New College, was elected (2) into his place, and the ſame time took his oath with the Badges of his authority.

Commiſſ. Mr. (3) { THOMAS SAUNDERS, Dr. of the ſacred Canons, again. THOMAS CHIPPENHAM, or CHIPMAN, LL. D. lately one of the Chaplains of Merton College, now Principal of Henxſey Hall in St. Aldate's Pariſh.

Proctors Mr. (4) { Thomas Wodehyll of William Hall in Kybald ſtreet. Thomas Bemyſley of Univerſity Coll. as it ſeems, now Princ. of Hampton Hall in St. Mildred's Pariſh. } elected May 4.

This year, Dec. 2, GEORGE NEVYL, before mentioned, Biſhop of Exeter, [and late Chancellor,] gave to the Univerſity ſix ſtaves for the uſe of the Bedells of the Univerſity. (5) [He was afterward Lord High Chancellor of England, and Archb. of York.]

1458 Chanc. (6) THOMAS CHAUNDLER, D. D. as before, of whom I find theſe verſes following. (7)

Fit ſtudii ſplendor, vita et virtute coruſcans:
Diſcretus, prudens, rexit per quatuor annos
Clerum, ſub quo pax, ſtudium, virtuſque vigebant.'

Seeing therefore that CHAUNDLER was Chancellor of the Univerſity, as from record is manifeſt, Baleus (8) from Leland is deceived in his report, that he was only Commiſſary or Prochancellor. As for the Author Dr. Marten, here quoted [below], who ſaith that Dr. Chaundler was created Doctor by Thomas Gaſcoigne, it muſt not be underſtood that Gaſcoigne was then public Profeſſor of Divinity, or held that chair, but only that he was Chancellor; for as Gaſcoigne ſaith (9) of himſelf, he, while he was Chancellor, created 35 Doctors of Divinity. But the ſaid CHAUNDLER (10) reſigning his office Jan. 17 this year, was at the ſame time elected again; and the reaſon why it was ſo ſoon before he had compleated his two years was, becauſe that ſeveral controverſies depended between the Academians and Burghers of Oxford; for this year, which is 37 of Henry VI, that memorable Compoſition, containing various Articles, relating to the controverſy, was made and finiſhed: [as before in the Annals for this year.] To theſe matters I ſhall add, that whereas Dr. Godwyn in his Commentaries de Præſulibus Angliæ reports (1) that John Chaundler, Biſhop of Saliſbury, was of New College (meaning this T. Chaundler that we have mentioned) is a noted miſtake, and aroſe I ſuppoſe from Leland and Bale their attributing the Chriſtian name of John, to this our Chaundler.

Commiſſ. Mr. (2) { WALTER WYNHALE, D.D. Prior of the Bl. Fryers in Oxf. / THOMAS TWYNGE, alias BONYFAUNT, D. D. / JOHN DANVERS, Dr. of the Decrees, lately Principal of St. Edward's Hall in St. Edward's Churchyard.

The ſenior of which Proctors was abſent at the time of the Election to his office, being then with the Chancellor; and becauſe he refuſed to diſpute about that time, being warned according to the form of the Statutes, by the Commiſſary and Proctors for the year aforegoing, was commanded by the Chancellor, for his contumacy, not to take upon his office, or execute any part of it for the year to come, unleſs he would perſonally diſpute in Schoolſtreet in formal diſputations after his return from London to Oxford, and confeſs in a full Congregation of Regents, that he had behaved himſelf diſobedienr, refractory, and illaudable. All which he diligently performing, was admitted to the office (2) of Southern Proctor. As for the junior Proctor, he was afterward one of the firſt Fellows of Braſenoſe College, where behaving himſelf very diſpleaſing to the FOUNDER SUTTON, was by him expelled his Fellowſhip, and diſenabled by a clauſe at the end of the Statutes of that Houſe from taking above one meal's meat, or one night's lodging therein. What I have more to obſerve of theſe Proctors is, that they were afterward ſervants to, and in favour with, Cardinal Wolſey, the Senior of them of them being the chief Steward of his houſhold (though Bac. of Div.) and the Junior Controller of his buildings at Oxford. [The Senior alſo became one of the Canons of K. Hen. VIII his College.]

diſpenſed with him from circuiting, and certain exerciſes preceding, if ſo be it ſhould happen that he ſhould be admitted to the reading of the book of Sentences. The reaſon of this was, becauſe he was Commiſſary, and that it did not become a Doctor to circuit for an inferior degree. His ſupplication was granted, conditionally, that he preach a ſermon in the Church of St. Peter in the Eaſt; ſo that his exerciſe being all before performed, viz. his twice anſwering in the Schools, and his four times preaching in St. Mary's Church, (all done in the ſpace of one year) was on Auguſt 4 1524 preſented and admitted to the degree of Bach. of Div. by Dr. John Young, [then Warden of New College, and titular] Biſhop of Callipolis, in the preſence of eight Doctors of Divinity. Elected Elected by the ſaid titles of Northern and Southern on the firſt day of Eaſter term, being the laſt Proctors that occur ſo diſtinguiſhed in our Regiſters.

[The Junior in 1547 was made Principal of White Hall, ſince involved into Jeſus College, became Warden of Merton College in 1562, Dean of Glouceſter 1565, Queen's Ambaſſador to the King of Spain 1567, and died in 1568-9.]

1541 Chanc. the ſame, [JOHN LONGLAND, Biſhop.]

Commiſſ. the ſame, [WILLIAM TRESHAM, D. D.]

Proctors Mr. (1) { Roger Bromhall, or Brommould of New Coll. / John Wyman of Magd. Coll. as it ſeems.

Which Proctors were elected Apr. 23 from the Company of Non-Regents by virtue of the King's letters (2) ſent from Greenwich. See more in the Annals this year.

1542 Chanc. the ſame, [JOHN LONGLAND, Biſhop.]

Commiſſ. the ſame, [WILLIAM TRESHAM, D. D.]

Proctors Mr. (3) { John Eſtwyke of Merton College. / William Pye of Oriel Coll. again.

Elected in the beginning of Eaſter term by the ſuffrages of the Doctors, and Heads of Colleges and Halls, as the former Proctors were. The Junior [in 1534 was admitted, as it ſeems, Bach. of Phyſic,] was a learned man, and afterward Dean of Chicheſter, and publiſhed one or more Latin Orations, an. 1553. He occurs Archd. of Berkſhire, an. 1549. [He was alſo D. D. Preb. in the Ch. of Wells, and Rect. of Chedſey in Somerſetſh.] (4)

1543 Chane. the ſame, viz. JOHN LONGLAND, Biſhop.

Commiſſ. in chief, the ſame, viz. WILLIAM TRESHAM, D. D.

Proctors Mr.(5) { John Eſtwyke / William Pye } Elected again on the firſt day of Eaſter term.

They were elected the ſame way as before, Pye being then Bach. of Div. and a Candidate (6) this year for the Degree of Doctor, and the other (7) for the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. This year the King did fully intend to viſit Oxford, and concern himſelf with the diſcipline of it, but other occaſions intervening, he came not.

Commiſſ. in chief, [the ſame,] WILLIAM TRESHAM, D. D.

Proctors Mr. (4) { John Smyth of Oriel Coll. / Simon Parret, again } Firſt day of Eaſter term.

[The Senior, being now as it ſeems B. D. was elected in 1550 Provoſt of his College. The Junior became a Benefactor to Magd. Coll.]

1547 Chanc. the ſame, namely, JOHN LONGLAND, D. D. and Biſhop of Lincoln, but he dying the 7th of May, RICHARD COXE, D. D. [Almoner to the King,] and Dean of Chriſt Church, was, though at London, by a ſolemn decree of the Univerſity elected (5) in a Convocation (not in a Congregation of Regents, according to the ancient manner) 21ſt of the ſaid month, Dr. HUGH WESTON in the Vacancy being Cancellarius natus. The 22d of July following the ſaid Chancellor coming to Oxford, was received (6) with the public congratulation of the Vicechancellor, Doctors, Proctors, and other Members of the Univerſity, at Magdalen College, where being preſent alſo Dr. Oglethorpe, Preſident, with the Students of that Houſe, Mr. Thomas Hardyng, the King's Profeſſor of the Hebrew Tongue, ſpake an elegant Oration before him, which being done, he was conducted to his lodgings at Chriſt Church.

What

What I have obſerved of this Chancellor, who by many hath been accounted an eminent Scholar of his time, is, that he was born (1) in Buckinghamſhire, bred in King's College in Cambridge, from whence coming to Oxford for preferment, was made one of the junior Canons of the Cardinal's College, an. 1525. And being then but Bachelor of Arts, was, with others, incorporated (2) at Oxford in the ſame faculty, Dec. 17, the ſame year: at which time, or ſoon after, (3) ſupplicating that he might anſwer at the Auſten Fryery, and anſwer the Maſters in formal diſputations, had his deſire granted, conditionally, that he oppoſe alſo at the ſaid Fryery: That he proceeded (4) Maſter of Arts with us July 2, 1526, having done his exerciſe for that degree partly at Cambridge and partly here: Alſo that he was one of thoſe Cantabrigians that was forced to leave Cardinal College, for following and too much abetting the opinions of Luther: That he was afterward Maſter of Eton School, where by his doctrine the youth profited much: That he proceeded D. D. at Cambridge about the year 1540, being then or before Archdeacon of Ely: That he became Dean of the new erected Cathedral of Oſney Jan. 8, an. 1543, (4*) and from thence tranſlated to Chriſt Church Nov. 4, 1546, at which time the ſaid See was tranſlated to that place: That the next year he was choſen Chancellor of this Univerſity, being in great favor with the then King. By which election it fell out that as the Oxonians enjoyed a Cantabrigian, ſo was it with Cambridge in former time by their election of John Bromyerd, an Oxonian, and an eminent writer in the reign of R. II, and ſince that Dr. Thomas Ruthall in the reign of Hen. VII. For the proving of the firſt to be an Oxonian, we need not go far, becauſe (5) Leland, Bale and Pits tell us ſo; and for the other, who was Secretary to K. Hen. VII, and afterward Bp of Durham, divers Epiſtles (6) written to him by the Univerſity teſtify as much, (though ſaid to the contrary by him (7) that hath written the book De Præſulibus Angliæ) among which is one (8) to crave his aſſiſtance againſt the Oppidans of Oxford in a ſuit of law with the Univerſity about the year 1516, and in it this paſſage—'Perge igitur ſancte pater, perge ut cepiſti tue illuſtriſſime ſuccurrens Matri ne ab infeſtiſſimis Oppidanis paciatur injuriam: nam immunitates quas munificentiſſimi Reges nobis conceſſerint, &c.' That while the ſaid Dr. Cox was Chancellor of the Univerſity, he acted many things that have been odious to poſterity, as may be fully diſcovered in the foregoing Annals. That by the favour of King Edward VI he became his Chancellor, Almoner, and Dean of Weſtminſter, having been before his Tutor. That upon the coming in of Queen Mary, he among others fled to Frankfort, and what he did there and elſewhere may be ſeen in a book called the 'Troubles of Frankfort.'

That

That after Qu. Elizabeth came to the crown he became Biſhop of Ely, in which ſee he continued to the time of his death, an. 1581.

Vicechanc. or Commiſſ. WALTER WRYGHT, (1) LL. D. ſometime Principal of Peckwater's Inn, now Head or Governor of Durham College, [Preb. of Sarum and Wincheſter,] and Archdeacon of Oxford, deſigned to his office of Vicechanc. by Dr. COXE about St. John Baptiſt's time. For Dr. TRESHAM having borne that office 15 years (as Demetrius Phalereus had been Rector of Athens ten) did, by a diſpenſation (2) granted for abſence from Exequies, Maſſes, Congregations, Convocations, and Scholaſtical Acts, (as one wearied out by his former trouble) retire in private 'till he had recruited and recollected himſelf: and then like an honeſt Governor, and one of a public ſpirit, retook the enſigns of authority upon him, as it ſhall be afterward ſhewed.

Proctors Mr. (3) { Edmund Cryſpyn of Oriel Coll. / Henry Baylie of New Coll.

Elected a little after the new Chancellor had taken his place, the ſenior being then ſix years, and the other five years ſtanding in the degree of Maſter; not altogether according to the order of K. Hen. VIII, an. 1541. They were ſoon after Doctors, and eminent Phyſicians of their times.

1548 Chanc. the ſaid Dr. RICHARD COXE, Dean of Chriſt Church.

Vicechanc. the ſaid (4) Dr. WRYGHT.

1549 Chanc. the ſame, [Dr. RICHARD COXE,] in which year, or about this time, it was ordered by the Edwardine Statutes (6) that the Chancellor of the Univerſity ought to remain in his office ſo long as the ancient Statutes and cuſtoms of the Univerſity do permit; viz. for two whole years, or ſo long as the tacit conſent of the Univerſity did give leave.

Vicechanc. the ſame, [Dr. WALTER WRYGHT,] who, whether he was again deſigned for a certain time I know not. For truly in the Statutes (7) now made or to be made, I find that the office of Prochancellor was not to be void every year, unleſs on the next day after the Cal. of October; that alſo a new Prochanc. was not then to be elected before 24 hours were paſt after the time of the ceaſing of the former, and that the ſaid election was wholly to be finiſhed by the major part of the Regents before three days were paſt. But this, as it ſeems, could not be this year ſo ſuddenly, when as the ſaid Prochancellor Dr. WRIGHT did before, in the time of the Viſitation in the month of May and after, enjoy his office. Neither is it that any may wonder, that the ancient and vulgar name of Commiſſary ſhould be changed into the name of Prochancellor or Vicechancellor, for the change ſprung rather from an affected purity of ſpeech, than from the common uſe of ſpeaking: yet in the King's reſcripts at this time and in others, as alſo in common diſcourſe, each name was uſed promiſcuouſly, though ſignified but one and the ſame Magiſtrate, written in our firſt and moſt ancient ſtatutes Cancellarii Commiſſarius and Commiſſarius generalis, and in certain Charters Cancellarii locum tenens. In the Edwardine Statutes, about this time made, he is written, as I have told you, Procancellarius, and in the Statutes of Cardinal Pole, Vicecancellarius; in which ſenſe are the gloſſes of Will. Linwode on the Bonifacian Conſtitution de pænis, (which beginneth thus, 'Æternæ ſanctio' &c.) to be underſtood, viz. that the Archbp of Canterbury hath in the College of [Biſhops a Provincial] Dean, who is Biſhop of London, a Chancellor who is [Biſhop of] Wyncheſter, and a Vicechancellor who is [Biſhop of] Lyncoln, &c. But from the High Chancellor of the Univerſity, the Vicechancellor doth receive his nomination or deputation, from the Convocation his approbation and confirmation, and from the Charters of the Univerſity his authority. He is alſo called the Chancellor's Vicegerent, as in the year 1230 and 1274 you may ſee; and again in a certain (1) Commiſſion concerning the peace, directed by K. Edward III, Dec. 1, an. reg. 32, to the Chancellor, 'ac gerenti vices ejus ibidem, nec non Majori Ville Oxon qui nunc ſunt, vel qui pro tempore erunt, &c.' The name of Vicechancellor which now began to take place before other, I have not as yet ſeen mentioned before the year 1448 as you may before under that year ſee, and then no more (as it ſeems) than the Commiſſaries Deputy. But worſt of all in my opinion doth Bale err in the lives which he writes (2) of Walter Haddon and (3) John Young, Cambridge authors, (who in the time of K. Edward's Viſitation there and a little after, bore the office of Vicechancellor) by confounding the name of Chancellor with Rector, and Rector with Vicechancellor, totally omitting the name of Prochancellor. Certainly he was altogether ignorant of the titles of the Governors of that Univerſity (though educated therein) or elſe he would not have committed ſuch errors, neither have forgotten in the life of King Edward VI, to make mention of the Reformation of religion and learning by his Commiſſioners at the ſaid place, and ſpeak alſo of the Statutes that were then publiſhed there for that purpoſe.

Of theſe Proctors and their office I ſhall obſerve, Firſt, that thoſe for the year before going and theſe for this, remained in their places, and were not ejected by the Viſitors: Secondly, that the time when they were elected appears not through the negligence of the Scribe that now was: Thirdly, that one Will. Lyngley occurs Proctor this year, and ſupplicated, (1) that whereas he was ſubject to ſickneſs, Mr. Chriſtopher Goodman, (now or lately of Braſenoſe College, afterward of Chriſt Church) might ſupply his office 'till the day after that of St. Michael, at which time according to the Edwardine Decrees was an election to be made of Proctors, Superviſors and Taxers. But in the ſaid ſupplicate, I ſuppoſe, is a miſtake, for inſtead of Leon. Lyngham the Scribe hath written Will. Lyngley, there being no ſuch Maſter in the Univerſity, as in the Catalogue of them (which with great exactneſs I have compoſed from the Regiſters) may be ſeen: Fourthly, that the junior Proctor, Richard Hughes or Hewes was, when choſen, but Regent ad placitum, by which election the order of K. Hen. VIII, mentioned in 1541, was again broken: Fifthly, that he was not of Oriel, as our Antiquary (2) in his very imperfect Catalogue of Proctors tells us, but of Magdalen College, for that Hughes which he means, became Fellow of Oriel (3) 1529, and reſigned 1534, being then Maſter of Arts, and about to marry.

1550 Chanc. the ſame, [Dr. RICHARD COXE.]

Vicechanc. the ſame, viz. Dr. WRYGHT, but he giving up his office according to the Edwardine Statutes in the beginning of Michaelmas term, Dr. WILLIAM TRESHAM, who had been often Commiſſary before, was elected Vicechancellor after this manner, according to the ſaid Statutes. (4) The office of Vicechancellor being void, the Beadles at the command of the Curators called a Congregation of Regents to be celebrated at nine in the morning, or one in the afternoon. They being aſſembled, the Proctors, with two ſenior Doctors, or in their turns two ſenior Bachelors of Divinity, ſtand in ſcrutiny, and after their own Suffrages are written, and at length the reſt, the ſenior Proctor reads them openly and ſeverally, and that perſon that had moſt, him they pronounced Vicechancellor.

Vicechanc. or Prochanc. AUDOEN, (2) or OWEN OGLETHORPE, D. D. Preſident of Magd. Coll. elected according to the Edwardine Statutes before mentioned; and being then abſent, Dr. TRESHAM ſupplied his place; but at his return in Nov. he performed the office (3) in his own perſon. (4) Afterward being often called away, Mr. RICHARD MARTIALL, [ſometime Fellow of Corpus Chriſti Coll.] Bach. of Div. [and Student] of Chriſt Church, was his Deputy. (5) Under whom that large Matriculation book, noted with the letter P on the dorſe, containing all the Scholars' names, and their ſervants, then in the Univerſity, was made; the former Matriculations, whether in books or rolls of parchment (for ſuch have there been, as is elſewhere remembered) being about theſe times loſt and embezzled. Mr. JOHN WARNER, Doctor [and Regius Profeſſor] of Phyſic, [Warden] of All Souls Coll. The 14th of Nov. following he reſigned it, (2) and the 18th day the Congregation of Regents and Non-Regents (3) elected Sir JOHN MASON, Knt. ſometime Fellow of All Souls College, [lately Ambaſſador into ſeveral foreign countries,] inſtalled Dean of Wincheſter, (in the place of Will. Kyngeſmill the laſt Prior of S. Swithine's, and firſt Dean of the ſaid Church of Wincheſter) 3 Edw. VI, Dom. 1549, afterward of the Privy Council to the King, and in great favour with him; which being in peace concluded, according to the ſaid Statutes, was the firſt and laſt that was ſo, for in the choice of Cardinal POLE, who ſucceeded MASON, the old Statutes were followed, and the name and authority of Cancellarius natus was then revived. As for the way, according to the ſaid new Statntes, by which Sir J. MASON was choſen, was thus: (4) The Beadles of the Univerſity having by command of the Prochancellor called a Congregation of Regents and Non Regents to be celebrated the next day at nine of the clock in the morning, the ſaid Prochancellor and the Proctors, with the junior Doctor in Theology, Civil Law and Medicine being called to them, did in the ſaid Congregation ſtand in ſcrutiny, and having given their own ſuffrages firſt in writing, took the others that were then in the Houſe. Which being done, the ſenior Proctor did read them openly and diſtinctly, and him that had moſt ſuffrages (which was Sir JOHN MASON) they pronounced the Chancellor elected.

Vicechanc. or Prochanc. JAMES BROKES, D. D. [ſometime Fel.] of C. C. C. bore that office in July and before. [He was now Maſter of Ball. (4) A Codicil (5) of which Election dat. Nov. 2 following, was afterward ſent to him, wherein 'tis ſaid, that he was elected perpetual Chancellor by the then Cancellarius natus, and the whole body of Regents and Non Regents. The ſaid noble Cardinal is alſo reported to have been Chancellor of Cambridge, but as to the time when I find it falſe; for in the publiſhed Tables of the Officers of that Univerſity, (6) the time of his election is referred to the year 1554, when as he came not into England till the month of September that year, (7) and that alſo Steph. Gardiner, Biſhop of Wyncheſter, was then Chancellor, continuing in that office till the day of his death, which as Baleus ſays, (8) was on the 13th of Nov. 1555. The ſaid Cardinal alſo being not conſecrated Archbiſhop of Canterbury till March 22, 1555, tis unlikely that the Cantabrigians would receive him for their Chancellor before his conſecration. There is alſo a certain (9) perſon that ſaith he begun the Chancellorſhip Mar. 4, 1556, and another (John Stokes, Orator of that Univerſity) the ſame year. For at which time he ſpake a ſpeech before the Viſitors that came to viſit the ſaid Univerſity Jan. 11, an. 1557, congratulated the Cardinal for taking the office of Chancellor upon him the year going before, he thereby, with the Students of that Univerſity promiſing to themſelves great matters that would follow. Which two perſons, though they agree as to the year, yet from the aforeſaid tables they diſſent two years, making thereby the amphibiline ſucceſſion defective as to this Chancellor, (as in others before) who now as Legate a latere, doth by his Commiſſioners or Viſitors viſit the ſaid Univerſity which was for many ages before (as tis vainly reported) (10) exempt from ſuch Viſitations by the privileges granted by Pope Honorius the firſt, An. Dom. 624. Which exemption, with all others that they had, whether true or falſe, Thomas Cranmer, Archbiſhop of Canterbury in the reign of K. Hen. VIII, (ſometime a Student of the ſaid Univerſity) cauſed them to be cancelled and yielded up as frivolous. An inſtrument of which action, being made thereupon, and atteſted by many, was publicly read before K. Charles I, and his Council at Hampton Court in the month of May 1636, by the then Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Dr. Laud, who at that time endeavoured to make his Metropolitan Viſitation in both Univerſities.

Commiſſary, Dr. WILLIAM TRESHAM, who performing his office till Nov. THOMAS RAYNOLDES, D. D. Warden of Merton Coll. and Dean of Exeter, was then deſigned Commiſſary or Vicechancellor by the Chancellor's letters (1) dat. [10th] of the ſaid month during only his pleaſure. By virtue of which he took his place, and had for his Deputy Dr. MARTIALL, [aforeſaid, Dean of Chriſt Church and Preb. of Wincheſter.]

Proctors Mr. (2) { Henry Wotton of Ch. Ch. / Thomas Davye or Davys of New Coll. } elected April 15.

But Henry Wotton, being choſen Greek Reader, and Fellow of Corpus C. Coll. [and reſigning] Aug. 14. (the Fellows of which College are diſenabled by their Statutes from taking upon them the Procuratorial office) William Alyn or Alan, Maſter of Arts of two years ſtanding, and Fellow of Oriel, was elected into his place (3) the [21ſt of the ſame month,] and ſerved out the remaining part of the year. [Henry Wotton proceeded Doctor of Phyſic July 12, 1567, and became famous for the practice thereof. (4)]

1557 Chanc. the ſaid Cardinal POLE.

Vicechanc. or Commiſſary, [the ſame,] Dr. RAYNOLDES, who holding his office till about Dec. 16, THOMAS WHYTE, LL. D. Warden of New Coll. and Archd. of Berkſhire, ſucceeded by virtue of the Chancellor's letters (5) dat. 10th of the ſame month: which office he was to keep no longer than it pleaſed the Chancellor.

Proctors Mr. (6) { Francis Babyngton of All Souls Coll. / William Allyn again, now Princ. of St. Mary's Hall } elected Apr. 28.

Of theſe Proctors, though ſome things be ſaid of them in the Annals of this book, under the year 1557, yet of them I ſhall obſerve theſe things following; viz. That Babyngton ſtood in Comitiis (as Inceptor in Arts) in an Act celebrated July 16, 1554; that in the year 1557 he was unanimouſly choſen Proctor; that in 1558 he was admitted Bachelor of Div: That in the year 1559, Feb. 19, he was the only Doctor of Div. that proceeded in an Act then celebrated, having before, in the ſame year, been elected Maſter or Head of Balliol College: Alſo that in 1560 he became Commiſſary or Vice-chancellor, Rector of Lyncoln College, and Margaret Reader. Which ſudden promotions are not to be attributed to the deſerts of the perſon, but that the Univerſity was very empty, wanted Theologiſts to perform offices and duties, and that any one proceeded as he pleaſed. Laſtly, as for Allyn he was born at Roſſall (near Polton) in Lancaſhire, and having run through various preferments was at length made a Cardinal of Rome, under the title of St. Martin in Monte at Rome, [Archb. of Mechlin in Brabant, and Librarian of the Vatican.]

This year in a Convocation, held May 5, were letters (1) read from Nicholas Ormanet the Pope's Datary, [D. C. L. of Padua, and incorporated in the ſame degree here Jul. 21, 1556, (2) alſo diplomated and made Dr of the Canon Law,] and Henry Cole, LL. D. late Warden of New College, Viſitors of the Univerſity, authorized by Cardinal POLE, commanding and deſiring the Heads of Colleges and Halls to amend the grand negligence of the Scholars under their rule. This was the laſt matter, as it ſeems, that they did act in their Viſitation, for this year alſo the ſaid Ormanet, with Cuthbert Scot, Biſhop of Cheſter, Thomas Watſon, Biſhop of Lincoln, John Chriſtopherſon, Biſhop of Chicheſter, and Henry Cole, Provoſt of Eton, lately Warden of New College, did viſit Cambridge according to the direction of a Commiſſion from the Cardinal the laſt year.

1558 Chanc. the ſaid Cardinal POLE, but he dying Nov. 17, Dr. W. TRESHAM became Cancellarius natus, who, afterward in a Conv. Jan. 21, (3) pronounced the place of Chancellor void by the death of him the ſaid Cardinal, did then make public to the Aſſembly, that the 24th of the ſaid month a new Chancellor was to be elected according to the Statutes then read over. The time being come, and a diſpenſation then propoſed, that a laical perſon might be choſen to the office of Chancellor, (after which were Nominators of his Electors deſigned by the Proctors according to the Statutes and laudable cuſtoms of the Univerſity, as 'tis expreſſed in the Regiſter for this time) HENRY FITZALAN, EARL of ARUNDEL, High Steward of the Univerſity, was choſen by the Suffrages of all the Electors (whether per Inſtantes, or according to the Edwardine Statutes, it appears not) and the 6th of Feb. following a Codicil of his Election was ſealed and ſent to him. For which great favour ſo expreſſed, he ſent a kind letter of thanks (4) dat. 24th of the ſaid month.

Commiſſ.

Commiſſ. the ſame that was lately Cancellarius natus, viz. Dr. WILLIAM TRESHAM, deſigned to that office by [the ſame] letters (1) from the new Chancellor, dat. Feb. 24, to continue therein till the feaſt of St. Michael next following.

Proctors Mr. (2) { Alan Cope of Magd. Coll. / Walter Bailey of New Coll. } elected Apr. 20.

[The Senior in about two years after went to Rome; where, though he had before for the ſpace of five years ſtudied the Civil Law in this Univerſity, he was actually created (as 'tis ſaid) Doct. or Bach. of Divinity, and became one of the Canons of St. Peter's Church at Rome; where he died in 1580. (3)

The Junior proceeded Doctor of Phyſic May 21, 1563, being then Regius Profeſſor of Medicine. (4) He died March 3, 1583, aged 63. See his Epitaph in New College Chapel.]

Queen Mary dying this year, a Convocation was celebrated the next (5) on the 1ſt of June, wherein that portion of her donation, which was yet undiſpoſed, was diſtributed among certain Officers and Servants of the Univerſity, to be received by them yearly for ever. The other diſtribution was made ſoon after: She had endowed the Univerſity with ſeveral Rectories of Churches, which was an. 1553.

1559 Chanc. HENRY FITZALAN, Earl of ARUNDEL, &c. but he either from a foreſight of ſome innovation that would ſuddenly happen in the Univerſity, or elſe ſome other cauſe, (whether upon any public or private offence I know not) began to entertain thoughts of quitting his office. The Academians underſtanding it, ſent one of the Proctors to him with letters, (6) whereby he was deſired in the name of the Univerſity to continue in his Chancellorſhip, and not deprive the deſtitute members thereof of his help, though according to his private opinion it might not, or would not ſucceed according to his wiſh. But, notwithſtanding the ſaid entreaties, and other ways whereby he was courted to continue in his office, he, on the 12th of June this year reſigned, and on the 20th following (Dr. TRESHAM being in the mean time Cancel. natus) after a diſpenſation (7) was propoſed for the electing of ſome noble Laic to the ſaid office (which was granted, notwithſtanding any Statute to the contrary) Sir JOHN MASON, Knight, one of the Queen's Privy Council, was elected Chancellor again, [the day following.]

Proctors Mr. (2) { John Day of Magd. Coll. / Edward Bramborow of New Coll. } elected Apr. 5.

[The Senior proceeded D. C. L. Jul. — 1579, and became Vicar Gen. to the Biſhop of Bath and Wells in 1587.] (3)

1560 Chanc. Sir JOHN MASON, Knt. before of the Privy Council to K. Hen. VIII, K. Edw. VI, Q. Mary, and now to Qu. Elizab. [and alſo Treaſurer of her Chamber.]

Commiſſ. FRANCIS BABYNGTON, D. D. and Maſter of Balliol Coll. deſigned by the Chancellor's letters dat. May 21 (4) Dr. WARNER having then or before reſigned.

Proctors Mr. (5) { Robert Leech, of Ch. Ch. / Thomas Scot, of Trinity Coll. } elected Apr. 24.

[The Senior proceeded D. C. L. July 7, 1567, being then Chancellor of Cheſter, and died in 1587.] (6)

This year, [July 6,] a certain ſum of money amounting to 12l. 13s. 4d. which was owing to the Univerſity by Dr. TRESHAM, (as by his accompts appeared) was forgiven and remitted, (7) and the reaſon for it was becauſe he had undergone the office of Commiſſary at leaſt 20 years without any reward given to, or ſtipend decreed for, him; and alſo that by his great labour and pains, thoſe great Benefactions were conferred on the Univerſity by Qu. Mary, (more than any Prince did before) as in my Annals may be fully ſeen. To this I muſt add, that by his endeavours in obtaining ſubſidies for learning, and Dr. RAYNOLDS his care in renewing the Schools, and doing other very beneficial offices, the Univerſity, which was almoſt brought to nothing, began to reflouriſh, though they themſelves could not ſee the continuance of it. For TRESHAM being this year deprived of his Canonry of Chriſt Church by the Queen's Commiſſioners, becauſe he would not take the Oath of Supremacy, retired to his Rectory of Bugbrook in Northamptonſhire (being now all the ſpirituality that was left him) where living obſcurely, died within few years after. 1561 Chanc. the ſame, [Sir JOHN MASON, Knt.]

Commiſſ. [the ſame,] Dr. BABYNGTON, (1) now Rector of Linc. Coll.

Proctors Mr. (2) { Oliver Wythyngton of Braſenoſe Coll. / Humph. Hall, of All Souls Coll. } elected Apr. 16.

[The Senior was admitted Doctor of Phyſic in 1568, being then or ſoon after Dean of Battel in Suſſex. He died in 1590, and was buried in the Church of St. Peter in the eaſt in Oxon.] (3)

The Junior was but Regent ad placitum when he was elected, he having ſtood in one of thoſe Acts that were ſolemnized an. 1559, that is to ſay, in that Act held May 20, when there were but one Doctor of Phyſic, named Thomas Phayer, (an eminent Scholar of his time) and ſeven Maſters.

1562 Chanc. the ſame, [Sir JOHN MASON, Knt.]

Commiſſ. the ſame, viz. Dr. BABYNGTON, (4) the Lady Margaret's Profeſſor, whom, though the Statutes of that Lecture did diſenable from bearing the office of Commiſſary, yet now the Univerſity were forced to diſpenſe with them, becauſe there were few or none that were capable of that office. But the ſaid Dr. BABYNGTON giving it up in the beginning of Michaelmas term, THOMAS WHYTE, [aforeſaid,] LL. D. and Warden of New College, ſucceeded. (5)

Proctors Mr. (6) { Roger Marbeck of Chriſt Church / Roger Gifford of Merton Coll. } elected Apr. 8.

Notwithſtanding the junior Proctor (who ſtood in the Act Feb. 19, 1559) had lately left the Society of Mert. Coll. to prevent expulſion for what he had done in the proceedings concerning the admiſſion of John Man to the Wardenſhip of the ſaid College, (of which I have given you an account in the Annals 1562) yet, by his ſorrow (1) expreſſed to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury for what he had done therein, he became one of the Lynaker Lecturers in that College, twice Proctor, as 'tis here ſaid, and this year about All Souls day Fellow of All Souls College. At length he was Doctor of Phyſic, Head or Governor of the College of Phyſicians in London, and Phyſician to Queen Elizabeth.

1564 Chanc. the ſame, namely, Sir JOHN MASON, Knt. but he (by his letters this year dat. Dec. 26) reſigning, (2) commended then to the Academians, who took his reſignation very ſorrowfully, the Earl of Leiceſter, and the Archb. of Canterbury, [Parker] to make choice of either of them to be their Chanc. Whereupon (the Commiſſaryſhip of Dr. WHYTE being alſo void, and Dr. HUMPHREY [Preſident] of Magd. Coll. governing as Cancellarius natus) a Convocation declared by the ſenior Proctor was celebrated (3) the laſt of the ſaid month for the election of a new Chancellor. In which, after the Doctors and Maſters had proceeded according to the Statutes, ROBERT DUDLEY, ([fifth] ſon of John Duke of Northumberland) Earl of LEICESTER, Baron of DENBIGH, Maſter of the Horſe, Knight of the moſt noble Order of the Garter, and of St. Michael [in France,] one of the Queen's Privy Council, and Maſter of Arts of this Univerſity, was elected Chancellor. He was alſo elected Steward of Cambridge Univeſity 1562, on the death of the Lord Paget.

Commiſſary, JOHN KENNALL, LL. D. Canon of Chriſt Church, Reſidentiary of the Cathedral of Exeter, Chancellor of Rocheſter, and Archdeacon of the Dioceſe of Oxford, was choſen by Suffrages in a ſcrutiny on the laſt of Dec. (4)

Proctors Mr. (5) { Roger Marbeck of Chriſt Church, [again,] / John Watkyns of All Souls Coll. } elected Apr. 12.

The ſenior Proctor (choſen Probationer-Fellow of Magdalen College an. 1555, but ſoon after left it) was this year [Nov. 18, (6)] elected Orator of the Univerſity, being the firſt of all after that office was made ſtanding or perpetual. [He was elected Provoſt of Oriel Coll. Mar. 3, 1564-5, made Canon of Chriſt Church 1565, admitted Doctor of Phyſic 1573, was Chief Phyſician to Queen Elizabeth, and died in 1605.] (7)

Note,

Note, that ſince this time, we never find in our Records any more mention of Cancellarius natus at the vacancy of any Chancellor, for he that was formerly Vicechancellor ſtill continued in his place [ti]ll the time of the next ſucceeding Chancellor, as Dr. [HETON] did when HATTON was choſen an. 1588, and Dr. JAMES when SACKVILLE was elected an. 1591, notwithſtanding the matter was then queſtioned by Lloyd, the junior Proctor, who took the ſaid things that were done by him to be nullities, in regard that he ſtill continued Vicechancellor after the Chancellor was dead.

1565 Chanc. the ſame, viz. ROBERT DUDLEY, Earl of LEICESTER, [Prime Miniſter to Queen Elizabeth.]

Commiſſ. [the ſame,] Dr. KENNALL, elected by ſcrutiny in a Convocation Feb. 25, (1) notwithſtanding the Statute de Inſtantibus formerly publiſhed.

Proctors Mr. (2) { Thomas Garbrand, alias Herks, of Magd. Coll. / John Merick of New Coll. } elected May 2, per inſtantes.

Whereupon the Chancellor, having notice of it, commanded the Maſters to proceed to another Election (Dr. Humphrey being in the mean time Commiſſarius natus) and a Convocation being called Mar. 27, it was decreed by them, that he that had moſt ſuffrages, ſhould, though he had [not] attained to the major part of the whole number, be elected Commiſſary. Commiſſ. [the ſame,] Dr. COOPER, deſigned to that office by the Chancellor's letter (3) with conſent of the Convocation, May 3.

Proctors Mr. (4) { James Charnocke of Braſenoſe Coll. / Edmund Campion of St. John's Coll. } elected Apr. 18, per inſtantes.

[This Edmund Campion, the junior Proctor, when Q. Elizabeth was entertained by the Univerſity in 1566, did not only make an eloquent oration before her at her firſt entry, but alſo was Reſpondent in the Philoſophy Act in St. Mary's Church, performed by him with great applauſe from that Queen, and the learned auditory. The year after his Proctorſhip he went into Ireland, where he compoſed the Hiſtory of that country, which was publiſhed in 1633 by Sir James Ware. But being diſcovered to have left the Church of England, and to labour for proſelytes, he was impriſoned. In 1571, having made his eſcape, he came into his native country, where making but a ſhort ſtay, he went and ſettled for a time in the Engliſh College at Doway, and became B. D. there. Thence he went to Rome, where he was admitted into the Society of Jeſus in 1573, and was ſent by that Order into divers Countries, and at laſt came with Father Perſons into England in 1580, by the command of Pope Gregory XIII. But being ſoon taken, he was with other Romiſh Prieſts, found guilty of treaſon, &c. and was executed at Tyburn Dec. 1, 1581.] (5)

There was alſo one Edmund Campion that was Fellow of Trinity College an. 1563, ſuppoſed by ſome to be the ſame with him of St. John's, he then or ſometime before tranſlating himſelf to that Houſe. But upon examination it cannot be, for he of St. John's proceeded M. A. an. 1564, [and

1569 Chanc. the ſame, [ROBERT Earl of LEICESTER.]

Commiſſ. the ſame, [Dr. COOPER,] now Dean of Glouceſter; but upon what account, whether by a new election of the Maſters, or by the Chancellor's letters, his office was prorogued, it appears not.

What I have to obſerve of the office this year is, that the Chancellor by the great power he enjoyed (as being the only favourite at court) took upon him the right of nominating the Commiſſary, under pretence of the troubleſome election of him laſt year, at which he took great offence: That alſo after the Election of ſuch that were by him nominated, a Codicil thereof was to be ſent to him: and laſtly that the name of Commiſſary began now to be diſuſed, and the word Vicechancellor brought into faſhion, for the election of whom by ſcrutiny and ſuffrages, we have no Statute that I know of in our books before the time of King Edward VI.

Proctors Mr. (1) { John Bereblock of Exeter Coll. / Thomas Bodley of Merton Coll. } elected Apr. 20.

How ancient the cuſtom was for chooſing Proctors per Inſtantes I find not. However the way was thus. At the reſignation of their offices, were two Scrutators, called Procuratores nati, appointed. Theſe for the election to come, deſigned by ſcrutiny two Regent Maſters ad placitum for Inſtantes. That being done, the Inſtantes conſtituted ſix other Maſters to be Electors of the new Proctors. Which ſix Electors with the Commiſſary or Vicechancellor did name the new Proctors for the year to follow, and after nomination were pronounced elected by the Scrutators. Which way, having been the year going before, Nov. 2, taken away (2) at the requeſt and command of the Chancellor, theſe Proctors for this year were elected by the ſuffrages of the Maſters in a ſcrutiny, and no otherwiſe.

As for the ſenior Proctor he was firſt Fellow [and Maſter of Arts] of St. John's College, which place he leaving was made Fellow of Exeter College, and became very ſkilful in the art of delineating, and drawing the deſcriptions of places, of which ſome are extant, particularly that of the City of Rocheſter; [at which place, or near it, he was born.] (3)

The other Proctor being ſo well known to us already, 'twill be needleſs to make any more mention than what I have already done in this work.

(3) As for the ſenior Proctor he was one of a robuſt body and couragious ſpirit, and defended his office as well by force of arms as authority. In vindicating alſo the liberties of Northgate hundred and the Pariſh of St. Clements (both joining to Oxford) aroſe great controverſies between him and George Brome, Eſq. (4) lord of thoſe places, (the firſt of which he held of the Crown) and continuing a conſiderable time to the great trouble and vexation of the ſaid Brome, did at length, to ſpite the Univerſity, who abetted Crayne in his proceedings, ſell the ſaid hundred to the City, ſuppoſing thereby that the Citizens would be better able than he to manage and carry on any quarrel that ſhould happen hereafter about liberties therein. In the year before or elſe this, the ſaid Crayne with his brother Proctor, walking in the night time in St. Thomas Pariſh, took a certain perſon in the act of adultery; to quit the puniſhment of which, he was forced by them (as I have heard) to repair that wooden bridge (then ready to fall) that leads from St. Thomas Pariſh into the Caſtle, that is to ſay, that bridge at the Caſtle-mill head.

The Junior was born at London, entered a Student into Univerſity Coll. in the 19th year of his age 1574. Six years after he became Fellow of All Souls Coll. and being M. A. and in holy Orders was admitted Reader of Divinity in Magdalen College. Afterwards he became Canon Reſidentiary of Hereford, Chaplain to the Queen, [Rector of Pembridge in Herefordſhire,] Dean of Windſor [1602, being then D.D. Regiſtrary of the Order of the Garter,] and at length Biſhop of Glouceſter. He died Jun. 14, 1612, [æt. 59,] and was buried in St. George's Chapel in the Caſtle at Windſor.

1588 Chanc. the ſaid ROBERT Earl of LEICESTER, who dying the 4th of September, [at Cornbury Park in Oxfordſhire, having been taken ill as he was upon his journey to his Caſtle at Kenilworth,] Sir CHRISTOPHER HATTON (ſometime of St. Mary's Hall) Knight of the Garter, and Lord High Chancellor of England, was by the major part of the Academians (3) elected into his place 20th of the ſaid month. In which vacancy and election there was no Cancellarius natus as formerly, but only the Vicechancellor underneath mentioned, who before had been deſigned by the Earl of LEICESTER. It is to be noted, that at the election of HATTON, Robert Earl of Eſſex, that popular and ambitious perſon, was his competitor, [who had been incorporated M. A. Apr. 11 preceding, (4)] thinking that if he might have carried it, he would be as powerful among the Gownſmen as among the Gentlemen of the Sword, but he being generally looked upon as a great patron of the Puritan faction, and conſequently that if he had obtained it he might do as much miſchief in his office as the Earl of Leiceſter had done before, he was therefore, and eſpecially upon the commendation to the Univerſity of HATTON, by Whitgift, Archbp of Canterbury, laid aſide.

Vicechanc. MARTIN HETON, D. D. (1) Canon of Chriſt Church, July 10. As for this worthy perſon, I find that he was born at London; that he was the ſon of George Heton, Merchant, (one in his time of great piety and hoſpitality) which George while he lived at Antwerpe, where he was Maſter of the Engliſh Merchants, cauſed his houſe to be free and open for thoſe that fled for religion ſake in the reign of Qu. Mary. At his return into England he became Chamberlain of London, and giving this his ſon that education which was fitting to his birth, ſent him at length to Weſtminſter School, where tarrying till 1571, was with Richard Eedes choſen Student of Chriſt Church. Three years after (1574) he became Bach. of Arts, and in 1578 Maſter in the ſame faculty, being then accounted an acute diſputant in Philoſophy. Afterward applying himſelf to the ſtudy of Divinity became a very noted Preacher in the Univerſity. At length, after he had ſpent ſome years in his Canonry of Chriſt Church, he became Dean of Wincheſter after the deceaſe of Dr. Humphry, and Biſhop of Ely after the death of Dr. Cox, [that ſee having laid void 20 years.]

Proctors Mr. (2) { Thomas Ravys of Ch. Ch. / Matthew Gwynne of St. John's Coll. } elect. Apr. 17, in a Cong. of Reg. and Non Reg.

The Senior was afterward Dean of Chriſt Church, and at length Biſhop of London. The other Dr. of Phyſic, and a noted writer in his time. [He was Phyſician to the Tower of London, the firſt Medicine Profeſſor of Greſham College, and one of the College of Phyſicians.] (3)

1591 Chanc. [the ſame,] Sir CHRISTOPHER HATTON, [Knight,] who dying Nov. 20, the thoughts of the Academians were much diſturbed concerning a Succeſſor. Some, eſpecially thoſe of the Puritan faction, were for Robert D'Evereux Earl of Eſſex, before mentioned, now in great favour with the Queen; others for THOMAS SACKVILE, Baron of BUCKHURST. At length a contention ariſing about it, the Academians, after they had received a letter from the Queen in favour of BUCKHURST, choſe him (2) the 17 Dec. following, and ſoon after ſent a Codicil (3) of his election to him. But that which I ſhall obſerve, that cauſed the contention to be very hot, was Dr. JAMES his denial of delivering up his office of Vicechancellorſhip in the time of the vacancy of the Chancellorſhip, according to the ancient manner. For ſo it was that the Commiſſary, upon the reſignation or death of the Chancellor, reſigned the Inſignia into the hands of the Proctors, and they into the hands of the Cancellarius natus, that is, the ſenior Theologiſt in the Univerſity. But now Dr. JAMES denying ſo to do, the junior Proctor Mr. Lloyd would not be preſent at Congregations, eſpecially that held Dec. 2: (4) for then divers being to be admitted to their degrees, he came into the Houſe and proteſted againſt the matters then to be done. After which he departed, and would act no more 'till either a Chancellor was elected, or elſe that a Cancellarius natus ſhould take place. In the mean time the Vicechanc. appointed Mr. John Tewer in his place for that time by giving him the Procuratorial oath.

Proctors

Proctors { Robert Williamſon of Magd. Coll. } Jun. 13.
Mr. (1) { Robert Lloyd of Jeſus Coll. }

Which Proctors were named by the King, as I have elſewhere told you. For certain new Ordinations (2) being tranſmitted to the Univerſity by the Chancellor in the month of April for the election of the Proctors, the Academians could not after their uſual way meet together for the election of them, many Parſons and Curates having already reſorted from ſeveral parts of the nation, nay, ſome from Wales, to elect Lloyd. Whereupon no ſmall tumult ariſing in the Univerſity, the election of new Proctors was prorogued 'till ſuch time that the controverſies in the Univerſity were equally compoſed. At length, after all parties were ſatisfied, it was reputed unlawful for the Maſters to nominate any to the Procuratorial Office but the aforeſaid Candidates Williamſon and Lloyd. Which being the ſentence of the King and Chancellor, that ancient cuſtom of chooſing Proctors by ſuffrages in a ſcrutiny vaniſhed, and another new form of election was introduced, as I am now about to ſhew.

Vicechanc. Dr. FREWEN again, (3) July 17.

In which year, for the ſucceſſion of the Procuratorial Office without public canvaſſing, (as the word now was) it pleaſed the King's Majeſty to convert the ſaid Elections into private and domeſtic. Alſo that the ſaid office might be equally diſtributed through every College, according to an arithmetical proportion, a Cycle of 23 years was made; (4) which, while it revolves, ſheweth how each College (from whence the Proctors are yearly to be taken) is to join till the year 1720, and after, and how many courſes each hath therein. Which Cycle being remitted into the Statutes by the King's authority, afterward publiſhed in a ſheet of paper, with ſuch Statutes that belong thereunto, thoſe factious elections by canvaſſing, or public ſolicitations for ſuffrages, which oftentimes proved pernicious to the Univerſity, were now (not too late) expired. The firſt Proctors of the ſaid Cycle, called by ſome the Caroline Cycle (chiefly compoſed by Peter Turner [M. A. afterward Dr of Phyſic, Fellow] of Merton Coll. [Profeſſor of Geometry in Greſham College, London, and Savilian Profeſſor of Geometry here,] and Robert Hegge, [Fellow] of Corpus Chriſti Coll.) were theſe:

Proctors { Peter Allibond of Lincoln Coll. / Mr. (2) Nicholas Greaves of All Souls Coll. } Apr. 15.

But the Senior dying at London in St. Bridget's Pariſh about the beginning of Febr. William Watſon of the ſaid College (Lincoln) was, within a few days after, choſen into his place, and admitted according to the Caroline Cycle. The other Proctor was afterward [D. D.] Dean of [Dromore] in Ireland, and there died.

1641 Chanc. the ſame, viz. Dr. WILLIAM LAUD, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, but he being accuſed of divers capital crimes in both Houſes of Parliament, and thereupon committed firſt to private cuſtody, then to the Tower of London, made a reſignation on the 22d of June of all authority and academical adminiſtration belonging to him in the Univerſity. Which reſignation under his hand and ſeal, he ſent with his letter of the 25th of the ſaid month to Oxford, giving therein very great tokens in a lamenting manner of his love and affection to the Univerſity. Both which being received, were, after a new Chancellor had been elected, anſwered with great affection and piety. The firſt of July following, the ſaid reſignation being publiſhed in Convocation, PHILIP HERBERT, Earl of PEMBROKE and MONTGOMERY, [Baron Herbert of Shurland, High] Steward of the Univerſity, [Knight of the Garter, Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, and one of his Privy Council] was then elected Chanc. and the 8th day of the ſaid month was inſtalled in London in his houſe called Baynard's Caſtle. He had been bred in this Univerſity, as he himſelf acknowledgeth. (3)

Vicechanc. Dr. PRIDEAUX again, [who had been Vicechancellor in 1619, &c.] deſigned to his office by the new Chancellor Oct. 7, and the 19th of December following was conſecrated Biſhop of Worceſter. But now Hierarchy daily declining, and Biſhops not only ejected from the number of Peers in Parliament, but alſo divers eccleſiaſtical perſons deprived of acting in ſecular affairs as alien from their profeſſion, this our worthy Vicechancellor, both a ſpiritual and temporal Judge, next to the Chancellor, in Academical cauſes, being thereupon thought not fit (at leaſt with ſafety) to execute his office, the Chancellor by his letters, dated March 2 this year, appointed a laical perſon GILES SWEIT, LL. D. his Commiſſary or Deputy to ſupply his turn in the Courts and civil affairs of the Univerſity. Which office, though it was for ſome time performed by him (ſuch were the times that required it) yet the like example we never before or ſince had.

Mr. (1) { Abraham Woodhead of Univerſ. Coll. }

This year that ſolemnity which ſhould have been performed by the Citizens of Oxford Feb. 10. (St. Scholaſtica's day) in St. Mary's Church, (on which day the great Conflict began an. 1354) was by them, partly out of contempt, and becauſe the rebellious Parliament favoured them, omitted.

1642 Chanc. [the ſame,] PHILIP, Earl of PEMBROKE, &c. ſometime of New College; [created M. A. in 1605.]

Vicechanc. &c. The year of the Vicechancellorſhip of Dr. PRIDEAUX, Biſhop of Worceſter, being ended, and he about the feaſt of St. John Baptiſt not only quitting all right therein (without laying down the enſigns of his office, as the manner is) but rather leaving the Univerſity abruptly, as the advantage of time offered, the office for ſome time laid void, and nothing of it was done but by Deputies. The which, for what reaſon it ſo happened, is perhaps at this time too great a trouble for me to tell. For now the Univerſity, the mother of togated peace, being affrighted with the unwonted rumours of a civil war, the Muſes deſerted, and the adorers of them every where diſperſed, knew not (as if put between the anvil and the hammer) which way to turn itſelf, or ſeek reſt. The adminiſtration therefore of its government, was ſucceſſively, according to the manner of our predeceſſors, committed to Deputies, of whom the firſt was Dr. ROBERT PINCKE, Warden of New College, who for his loyalty in raiſing and ſettling the Univerſity Militia for the defence of it from the common incurſions of the enemy, and for endeavouring to make the City provide alſo men and arms for its defence, the Citizens being very backward in it, was afterward treacherouſly

(1) [Abraham Woodhead, after quitting his office (not without trouble, occaſioned by the denying the Grace of Francis Cheynell, of which he complained to the Long Parliament) attended ſeveral young Gentlemen of his College on their travels. And ſettling for a time at Rome, he was entertained by George Duke of Buckingham, whom he inſtructed in Mathematics. After his return (being deprived of his Fellowſhip by the Viſitors appointed by the Parliament for abſence and non-appearance an. 1648) he lived for ſome time in York Houſe in the Strand near London, by the appointment of the ſaid Duke; but Arthur Lord Capell being informed of the great merits of the perſon, he entertained and learned of him the Mathematical ſciences. In 1660 he was reſtored to his Fellowſhip by his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, and remained in his College for a time: But his opinion as to Religion being then altered (as it had been ſince he was at Rome, which he always very warily concealed) got leave of the Maſter and Society to be abſent, as intending again to travel, with the allowance of 20l. per an. So that retiring to London, he afterwards ſettled at Hoxton, alias Hogſden, near to that city, where he lived very obſcurely and retiredly upon that allowance that the College made to him as a Traveller, all therein, except one, knowing not to the contrary, but that he was beyond the ſeas. And there being ſettled, he not only cauſed youths to be trained up in the Roman Catholic Religion (of which certain Members of Parliament did openly make mention in the Houſe, after the Popiſh Plot was diſcovered) but alſo wrote and publiſhed divers books in vindication of the Church of Rome. In this his retirement, he died at Hogſden in 1678, aged 70. ATH. OXON. II, 613.]

After him Dr. TOLSON, Provoſt of Oriel, ſucceeded as Pro-vicechancellor, continuing in the ſaid office (none as I think, intervening) till the 7th of Feb. following: (1) a little before which time he being nominated by the Chancellor's letters ſent to the Univerſity, was on the ſame day in a Convocation then held, ſworn and admitted (2) by the conſent of the Doctors and Maſters then preſent.

In 1660 he was reſtored to his Fellowſhip, but dying in the beginning of the next year was buried in Wadham College Chapel.] (3)

1643 Chanc. the ſame, namely, PHILIP Earl of PEMBROKE and MONTGOMERY, &c. but he being thought unworthy to bear the ſaid Office by the King and Univerſity, foraſmuch as he was actually againſt the former in the preſent War, and altogether neglected the other, the King (4) authorized the Members thereof to make choice of another. Wherefore they calling a Convocation, Oct. 24, elected (5) for their Chancellor one that had been formerly of Magdalen College, viz. WILLIAM Marquis of HERTFORD, Viſcount BEAUCHAMPE, Baron SEYMOUR, [one of his Majeſty's Privy Council,] &c. and the 31ſt of the ſaid month admitted and inſtalled him in the Convocation Houſe (then the North Chapel joining to St. Mary's Church) in the preſence of the Biſhops of Bath and Wells, Saliſbury, and Rocheſter, and divers of the Nobility that were then in the Univerſity. [He had been admitted B. A. 1607, and created M. A. 1636: (6) He was alſo now Governor to Charles Prince of Wales, and Groom of the Stole to his Majeſty.]

Vicechanc. Dr. JOHN TOLSON, D. D. Provoſt of Oriel, who continuing in his office till the 18th of Nov. Dr. PINCKE, before mentioned, ſucceeded again. (7)

beſt preſages. And in all other things I ſhall, by the divine aſſiſtance, improve my poor abilities and intereſts in manifeſting myſelf to the Univerſity and yourſelves

[Your moſt cordial friend and ſervant, O. CROMWELL.']

Which being read in a Convocation held [22*d*] of the ſame month, the Members thereof made the Houſe reſound with their chearful acclamations. (1)

Vicechanc. DANIEL GREENWOOD, D. D. Principal of Braſenoſe College, admitted (2) October 12, having been on the 12*th of Sept. going before, nominated and deſigned to that office by the Committee for the reformation of the Univerſity, the Chancellorſhip being then void.*

Proctors Mr. (3) { Thankful [or Gracious] Owen of Linc. Coll. / Philip Stephens of New Coll. } Apr. 24.

It was ordered (4) in the beginning of this year [Mar. 13, 1649-50,] by the Viſitors, with the conſent of the Members of Queen's and Lincoln Coll. that Mr. Owen, Fellow of Lincoln Coll. be elected and appointed to be Proctor for the ſaid year, and that Queen's Coll. ſhould be enabled by the ſaid Order to nominate and elect a Proctor the very next time it comes to Lincoln College turn, to elect according to the Cycle.

[The Senior in 1650 was appointed Preſident of St. John's Coll. by the Committee for the reformation of the Univerſity; and was a noted Politician for carrying on the independent intereſt in the Univerſity. In 1660 he was forced to leave his beloved Preſidentſhip to make room for the right owner Dr. Richard Baylie, who for 12 years going before had ſuffered much for his loyalty: ſo that retiring to London he took up his quarters at length in Hatton Garden, and was not wanting to carry on the Congregational way upon all occaſions. He died in 1681. (5)

The Junior, ſometime of St. Albans' Hall, being now Fellow of New College by favour of the Viſitors, was appointed Principal of Hart Hall by the ſame authority in 1653. He proceeded Dr. of Phyſic 1656, was ejected 1660, and died in London.] (6)

1651 Chanc. [the ſame,] OLIVER CROMWELL.

Vicechanc. Dr. GREENWOOD again, (7) Nov. 6, nominated and recommended to this office by the Chancellor's letters, dated Oct. 2.

Proctors

Proctors { Matthew Unit of Trin. Coll. } Apr. 9.
Mr. (1) { Samuel Lee of Wadh. Coll. }

Which Proctors were, as 'twas by all the new comers ſuppoſed, elected according to the Caroline Cycle, but much miſtaken; for whereas the time of admiſſion is according to the Cycle moſt juſt, being in the beginning of every year, the preſent Academians thought that the election of them was right. Which election, according to the Statutes is to be in each College that is to have a Proctor, on the Wedneſday next after the firſt Sunday in Lent, which is towards the latter end of the year according to the Engliſh accompt. By which miſtake (notwithſtanding the Colleges here mentioned were ordered by the Viſitors (miſtaken alſo) to chooſe Proctors) the Cycle which was altogether interrupted from the year 1648 to this, was kept back an year, and ſo continued till 1662.

The Junior not being of ſufficient ſtanding in the degree of Maſter, at which time he was elected Proctor by the Society of his Coll. the Viſitors diſpenſed with it (2) by their Order dated March 22, 1650. [He had been entered a Commoner of Magd. Hall, (having received ſome academical education elſewhere) about the latter end of 1647, in expectation of a Fellowſhip from the Parliamentarian Viſitors, then about to ſit in Oxon, under pretence of reforming the Univerſity. On the 14*th of Apr.* 1648 he was actually created M. A. in the Pembrochian Creation then made; about which time he was recommended by the Committee (ſitting in Weſtminſter) to the ſaid Viſitors for a Fellowſhip of All Souls Coll. but the Fellowſhips of that College having been ſupplied by them, they ſettled him in a Fellowſhip of Wadham Coll. Oct. 3 the ſame year. He became a frequent Preacher in and near Oxon, without any Orders from a Biſhop, and was preferred by Oliver to the Miniſtry of St. Botolph's Church near Biſhopſgate in London, but ejected thence by the Rump Parliament. At length he became Lecturer of Great St. Helen's Church in London. After the Reſtoration he was not ſilenced for Nonconformity, becauſe he had no Preferment to loſe, but lived on an eſtate of inheritance in Biceſter, Oxfordſhire, where he ſometimes kept Conventicles. In 1678 he removed to Newington Green near London, and in 1686 he went with his family to New England. But in the reign of K. Will. III, returning to Old England, they were taken by a French Privateer near their journey's end, Nov. 1691: and being all conveyed to St. Maloes, this S. Lee was ſo overwhelmed with grief for his captivity and loſs of his money and goods, that he died in a manner heartbroken.] (3)

1652 Chanc. the ſame, [Oliver Cromwell,] who being as yet in Scotland, and perceiving how troubleſome it was to the Academians to apply themſelves to him about their concerns, he, by his letters or inſtrument (4) dat. Oct. 16 this year did commiſſionate, appoint, and delegate Mr. J. Owen, Dean of Ch. Ch. Dr. J. Wilkins, Warden of Wadham Coll. Mr. Thomas Goodwin, Preſident of Magd. Coll. Dr. JONATHAN GODDARD, Warden of Merton Coll. and Mr. PETER FRENCH, Prebendary of Chriſt Church, or any three or more of them, to take into conſideration all and every matter of diſpenſation, grant, or confirmation whatſoever, which required his aſſent as Chancellor of this Univerſity. At the ſame time alſo he delegated his power of hearing and determining College differenses to the Vicechanc. and Heads of houſes for ſix months.

Vicechanc. JOHN OWEN, Maſter of Arts, Dean of Chriſt Church, admitted Sept. 26, (1) having been nominated by the Chancellor's letters dated 9th of the ſame month.

Proctors Mr.(2) { Francis Howell of Exeter Coll. / Peter Jarſey of Pemb. Coll. } Apr. 28.

The Senior [elected Reader of Moral Philoſophy Mar. 5, 1654, (3)] was afterward Principal of Jeſus College, [by the favour of O. Cromwell, but was removed at the Reſtoration.]

This year the ſix ſolemn Lectures which Bachelors in the faculty of Arts were to read for the degree of Maſter, were put down, and Declamations appointed in their ſtead; and every Bachelor that intended to proceed was to declaim twice in the Natural Philoſophy School.

1653 Chanc. OLIVER CROMWELL, this year made Lord Protector of England, Scotland and Ireland.

Vicechanc. JOHN OWEN, (4) [again] Oct. 19, created D. D. by a Diploma on the 23*d of Dec. following, he being then abſent from the Univerſity.*

Proctors Mr. (5) { Philip Ward of Chriſt Church / Robert Gorges of St. John's Coll. } Apr. 20.

The Junior [ſometime of Edmund Hall, was created M. A. in 1648, in the Pembrochian creation, and ſoon after made Fellow of St. John's Coll. by the Viſitors. He] was afterward Secretary to Henry Cromwell (Lord Lieutenant of Ireland) [D. C. L. of Dublin, and at length Secretary to Frederic Duke of Schomberg, General of his Majeſty's Forces in Ireland.] (6)

Proctors

Proctors { Thomas Cracroft of Magd. Coll. } Apr. 5.
Mr. (1) { Stephen Charnock of New Coll. }

[The Junior, ſometime of Emanuel Coll. Cambridge, in 1650 obtained a Fellowſhip in New Coll. from the Viſitors, and in 1652 was incorporated M. A. as he had ſtood in Cambridge. After he had diſcharged his office, he went into Ireland, became B. D. in Dublin, and exerciſed his Miniſtry till the Reſtoration, when being ejected from his public exerciſe, he returned into England, and was much known by his conſtant preaching in private Meetings. He died in 1680, aged 52.(2)]

1655 Chanc. the ſame, [OLIVER CROMWELL.]

1668 Chanc. the ſame, Dr. SHELDON, Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Vicechanc. Dr. FELL again, continued in his office by decree of the Delegates of the Convocation, Oct. 5, (1) without any nomination thereunto by the Chancellor, he being as yet not ſworn or inſtalled: So that thereby all the Chancellor's power reſted in his Deputy. [Dr. FELL became Biſhop of Oxford in 1675.]

Proctors Mr. (2) { Richard White of St. Mary's Hall, William Durham of Corp. Ch. Coll. } Apr. 1.

Balliol College not having a ſtatutable Maſter to undergo the office this year, which the Caroline Cycle did appoint, Mr. Benjamin Woodroffe, Student of Ch. Church, entered himſelf a Commoner in the ſaid College a day or two before the time of election. And being elected by the Head and Maſters of the ſaid College, ſtirred ſo much in the matter for admiſſion thereunto in Convocation as to have a hearing before the King and his Council. But they finding the matter litigious, referred it to the Univerſity. (3) Wherefore the Doctors and Maſters, aſſembled in Convocation for the admiſſion of the Proctors, did, (after Mr. Woodroffe had made an eloquent ſpeech before them in his own defence, and for the obtaining of the office) adjudge the matter to the Halls, ſo that Mr. White, who had been choſen before, was then admitted. [Mr. Woodroffe was afterward D. D. Canon of Chriſt Church, and Principal of Glouceſter Hall.]

The Junior of the aforeſaid Proctors was afterward [B. D. Rector of Letcome Baſſet, Berks,] Chaplain to James, Duke of Monmouth, [the Chanc. of Cambridge,] and created Doctor of Divinity at Cambridge [1676. He died at Letcombe Baſſet June 18, 1686, and was buried there.] (4)

THE STEWARDSHIP OF THE UNIVERSITY.

THE Office of STEWARD in this Univerſity concerning the capital and chief cauſes of Scholars and privileged perſons, King Henry IV, by his letters (1) patent dated June 2, an. reg. 7, Dom. 1405, did inſtitute. Of which grant and office I ſhall obſerve

Firſt, that becauſe of the great malice of the Burghers and Laicks of Oxford, by their unjuſt indicting the right and true uſe of the Franchiſes and Privileges of the Univerſity (of which the Scholars made grievous complaints to the King, in an Epiſtle to him, (2) which I have ſeen) did therefore make a Grant to the Chancellor and Scholars thereof, that they might have a Steward of their own, by whom they ſhould be tried, &c. and that at the demand of the Chancellor, all Juſtices and other Miniſters of Government ſhould deliver them up to him ſub pœnâ 200 lib.

Secondly, that for the revoking of the ſaid Let. Pat. and Office which the Scholars obtained, ſeveral petitions were made to the Parliament, ſcil. one by the Commonalty (3) of England, 9 Oct. 9 Hen. IV, when the then Repreſentatives of the Nation began to ſit at Glouceſter. Upon the reading of which the matter was referred to the King's Council, to hear the reaſons given in by each party either pro or con; and in the mean time the ſaid Let. Pat. or Charter was ſuſpended till the next Seſſion of Parliament: Another, when the Members met at Weſtminſter 15 days before that of St. Hilary, 11 Hen. IV. Upon which the Chancellor of the Univerſity was by ſeveral breves cited to appear before the King's Council, and being at length referred to them for the deciſion of the matter, were ſeveral debates made either for leſſening or nulling the privilege. Two more petitions alſo in French, of which one (1) was put up in the ſaid year by the Gentry of Oxfordſhire and Berkſhire, and another the 13th by the Mayor and Burghers of Oxford (2) to the King. Notwithſtanding all which the buſineſs was ſo brought to paſs, that the Univerſity and their friends did then take care that nothing of the ſaid privilege ſhould be leſſened but rather confirmed, as they did in the reigns of ſucceeding Kings.

Thirdly, that though the Steward had and hath cognizance of ſome cauſes which doth exceed the cognizance of the Chancellor of the Univeſity, yet he is to be nominated by no other perſon than by the ſaid Chancellor, and confirmed by no other than the Convocation.

Fourthly, that the Steward had at firſt for his yearly penſion but 4 marks, ariſing from the perquiſites of Court leets kept by him or his Deputies, not reckoning thoſe things that iſſue from the aſſize of bread and ale; but ſince, in the time of JOHN RUSSEL, Earl of BEDFORD, the Stipend was aſſigned to be 5 lib. yearly, to be paid out of the Univerſity ſtock.

Fifthly, that the ſaid Steward, after his nomination and confirmation, was wont to receive his oath from the Chancellor in a ſolemn Congregation of Regents, as JOHN NORRYS, (3) and ſome of his ſucceſſors did. But ſince, the Oath is taken before ſome appointed by the Univerſity to give it whereſoever the Steward is, without the ceremony of a Congregation or Convocation. The Catalogue of them, as many as I can yet find, take, as it follows, for the firſt and ſecond appear not; ſo imperfect are our Regiſters in the time of Henry IV and V.

JOHN NORRYS, Eſquire of the Body to K. Henry VI, became Steward of the Liberties of the Univerſity of Oxford, for term of life, by the Letters pat. (4) of the Chancellor thereof, Mr. GILBERT KYMER, dated Mar. 4, 31 Hen. VI, Dom. 1452, confirmed by the Univerſity May 6 following. He was alſo confirmed in his Office by the Honourable Mr. GEORGE NEVYL, Chancellor of the Univerſity, and obtained confirmatory Letters from King Henry VI (5) for him and his ſucceſſors in the ſaid office, dated Feb. 15, in the 33d year of his reign, Dom. 1454. [He was alſo Maſter of the Wardrobe to King Hen. VI; Sheriff of the Counties of Oxford and Berks in the 36th of his reign; Eſquire of the Body to K. Edward IV: And reſiding at Yatenden, Berks, departed this life 1 Sept. 6 E. IV. (1466;) whereupon he was buried at Bray, in an aile of that church, built at his own coſt. (6)]

PARLIAMENTARY BURGESSES

UNIVERSITY.

FROM the time that King James by his Diploma, dated March 12, an. Reg. primo, Dom. 1603, granted to each Univerſity Parliamentary Burgeſſes (being firſt of all moved thereunto by the Chancellor of each place, followed with a great demur among the Parliament men, whether it was fit that they ſhould have ſuch or no, but was cleared by Sir Edward Coke, [the Attorney General, afterward Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas and King's Bench ſucceſſively,] who then ſtood up in behalf of the ſaid Univerſities) have been theſe following of this Univerſity, elected in Convocation by the Vicechancellor, Doctors, Regent, and Non Regent Maſters:

1603 { Sir DANIEL DUNN, Knt. [LL. D.] ſometime [Fell.] of All Souls Coll. now Dean of the Arches. (1) / Sir THOMAS CROMPTON, Knt. LL. D. ſometime of Merton College. (2) } elected Mar. 16. (3)

But that Parliament wherein they ſat, [which began Mar. 19, an. reg. 1, 1603,] being continued ſeveral years, after divers prorogations had been made, Sir THOMAS CROMPTON at length died in Jan. or Feb. 1608[9].

1640 { Sir FRANCIS WINDEBANKE, Knt. ſometime of St. John's Coll. now Secretary of State; Sir JOHN DANVERS, Knt. again } Mar. 9. (1)

The firſt was choſen by the commendations of the Chancellor, and the other for the reſpect that the Univerſity had for his brother the Earl of Danby, Founder of the Phyſic Garden. But ſiding with the Parliament in the Rebellion that broke out an. 1641, was at length appointed to be one of the King's Judges in order to his beheading, and was known by the King, and (as is ſaid) named before the Auditory when he was firſt brought to his trial. (2)

But this [fourth] Parliament then held, which began Apr. 13, 1640, [an. reg. 15,] being immaturely diſſolved [May 5,] to the great damage of the public, upon troubles ariſing in the North by the Scottiſh invaſion; another, afterwards called the Eternal or Long Parliament, was ſummoned to appear at Weſtminſter Nov. 3, 1640, [an. reg. 15;] for which the Univerſity choſe

But Sir THOMAS dying in November in the year 1644, his place laid void, and none appeared either in the Houſe of Commons at Oxford, or in that at London, only the learned SELDEN. (4)

[(2) Lord Clarendon, in his Hiſtory of the Rebellion, delivers the following character of him, after the mention of Sir Henry Mildmay, another of the King's ſervants and judges: 'The other was Sir John Danvers, the younger brother and heir of the Earl of Danby, who was a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to the King, and being neglected by his brother, and having, by a vain expenſe in his way of living, contracted a vaſt debt, which he knew not how to pay, and being a proud formal weak man, between being ſeduced and a ſeducer, became ſo far involved in their counſels, that he ſuffered himſelf to be applied to their worſt offices, taking it to be a high honour to ſit upon the ſame bench with Cromwell, who employed and contemned him at once: nor did that party of miſcreants look upon any two men in the kingdom with that ſcorn and deteſtation as they did upon Danvers and Mildmay.' He died before the Reſtoration of K. Ch. II; but, however, all his eſtates both real and perſonal were confiſcated in 1661.]

The Rump Parliament, or the reliques of the Long Parliament that continued ſitting from 1640 to Apr. 20, 1653, were invited by the Officers of the Army to ſit again, May 6, 1659. According to that invitation they met the day following, but among them the Univerſity had not one Burgeſs to ſerve them; they being divers years ſince dead. They ſat till Oct. 13, and then they were ſhut out of doors by the Army. But that action being diſliked by General Monk in Scotland, they were by his power reſtored, and they began not only to ſit again Dec. 26 following, but ſhortly after to have thoſe Members added to them that had been ſecluded on the 21ſt of Febr. 1648. So that they ſitting till March 16, 1659-60, were then diſſolved; and another (1) Parliament being then ſummoned to be held at Weſtminſter Apr. 25 following, we thereupon choſe theſe following, viz.

"RICHARD, King of the ROMANS, after his long paralytic illneſs, died Apr. 2, 1272, (56 Hen. III) at Berkhamſted, his heart was preſerved in the Frier Minors' Church at Oxford, and his body interred in his own Ciſtertian Abbey of Hales. He had been ſo great a Patron of WALTER de MERTON, that this munificent Prelate an. 1274, founded his College in Oxford, 'Pro ſalute animarum Henrici quondam Regis Angliæ, nec non Germani ſui Ricardi Romanorum Regis inclyti et hæredum ſuorum.' (1)

Worceſter College, Oxford, 1726, was elected Fellow of this Society 1735; ſoon after which he took the degree of Bachelor of Phyſic, and removed to the city of Worceſter to practice in that profeſſion. He proceeded D. M. in 1759, and continued eminent in practice till his laſt illneſs. He died at Bath of a lingering diſorder Jun. 27, 1776, and is buried in the Abbey church. His amuſement was the ſtudy of the polite arts, particularly painting, and that branch of it which beſt befits a gentleman, the deſigning hiſtorical pictures, in which he ſo far excelled, that it has been ſaid of him, that if he had not been one of the beſt phyſicians, he would have been the beſt painter of the age. About 1425 five bells were put up in the Tower, Dr. Henry Abendon being then Warden. The tenor or great bell (on which the name of the ſaid Abendon was put) was ſuppoſed to be the beſt bell in England, being, as 'twas ſaid, of fine metal ſilver ſound.

In 1657 theſe five bells were caſt into eight by Michael Derby; towards which A. W. his mother, and his two brothers, Rob. and Chriſtopher Wood gave 5l. And in 1681 they were re-caſt by Chriſtopher Hudſon of London. (1)

'JOHN MARSHALL, [Fellow,] occurs Principal of Colcell or Coleſhill Hall, in St. John Bapt. Pariſh, Ox. 1447: Proctor of the Univ. under the title of Procurator borealis, an. 1455, Fellow of Eaton Coll. Preb. of York, Dr. of Div. Canon or Preb. of Windſor 1474, which Canonry he reſigned 1477, and ſoon after [1478] became Biſhop of Landaff. In 1491 he gave 20*l.* for the painting of the ſtalls in this (Merton) Coll. choir, and two books to the Library. In 1492 was finiſhed, at this Biſhop's charge, a new and fair ſtone croſs in St. Frideſwyde's churchyard, in the place, or near it, of one anciently ſtanding there (which churchyard was afterwards converted into two or more gardens belonging to the Dean and two Canons of Chriſt Ch.) and the firſt perſon that preached in the pulpit at the ſaid croſs (which was on Aſcenſion day 1492) was Mr. Rich. Rawlins, Fellow of [this] Merton Coll. In 1496

he

he bequeathed to the College 20*l.* in Angels for the ceiling of the choir with boards, 8 books to the Library, and a ſtanding gilt cup or bole, all received March 3, the ſame year. In 1497 the ceiling of the ſaid choir was finiſhed, which coſt 90*l.* and about the ſame time the painting of the back part of the ſtalls in the choir. Every diviſion or ſtall had the effigies from head to foot, with antique habits, and antique coverings for the head, of a greater or leſſer Prophet, or Apoſtle, or ſome Saint: each having a ſcroll coming out of their mouths, winding over their heads, containing a ſentence from the Belief, Pater noſter, &c. till all was done, even to Amen. All theſe pictures were daubed out as I have heard temp. E. VI, but ſoon after appeared again. In the time of Oliver Protector they were daubed out again, but ſoon after appeared. At length in 1659 oil colours were laid upon them, and then they were quite loſt. In 167—, when theſe old ſtalls were plucked down, being very ſubſtantial, and of heart of oak not at all periſhed, and new ones placed at the charge of Mr. Fiſher; they were removed into the outward chapel, where they yet continue. In the laſt ſtall (or rather part of one) next of all to the veſtry door, and in that oppoſite to it, was painted to the life the effigies kneeling of the ſaid Biſhop Marſhall, habited in his pontificalia, and mitred, with his croſier leaning on his right ſhoulder, and this inſcription under each picture:

Orate pro a'i'a D. Jo'his Marſhall ep'i Landavenſis, cujus a'i'æ propitietur Deus. Amen.

When theſe ſtalls were pulled down, Mr. N. Wight did at my deſire put one of theſe boards whereon the picture was painted in the College Library, and hung it againſt the wall over the ſtairs; where continuing till 1683, at what time ſcaffolds were ſet up to paint and gild the roof of the ſaid Library, it was by the workmen uſed, and at length by one of them conveyed away. Biſhop Marſhall died 1496—buried in the Church of Landaff.'

"It appears by a French Copy of this Petition now extant in the Schools Tower, that Mr. Twyne, or the Univerſity itſelf, procured one in 1622 out of the Bundle of Petitions of Parliament in 7 Edw. III. This is teſtified by two Clerks or Keepers of thoſe Records, Aug. Vincent and Geo. Robinſon. Now Mr. Wood in his Hiſtory does very truly obſerve, that there was no Parliament held at all that year, and therefore he has placed it under 7 R. II. But in this he is miſtaken; for though there was a parliament held that year, yet it will manifeſtly appear, that this Petition could not be preſented ſo ſoon; but in all likelihood the 11th of his reign, which begun Feb. 3, 1387; for all his Writs relating to this petition are dated in that year, or the following 1388." There are a great many witneſſes to this deed, but the date is not added, nor was much uſed before the middle or end of Henry the Third's reign; yet it happens, that this want is ſupplied by a letter of Attorney to give poſſeſſion, dated the thurſday after Midſummer day, an. ſituated the firſt houſe in Highſtreet, on the North ſide in St. Peter's in the eaſt, and ſtands oppoſite to the front of the preſent College; with this alſo was conveyed 8*s.* quit-rent in St. Mary's pariſh, now encloſed in All Souls College: there was ſome quit rent due out of it, and in order to its ſale, the Abbot and Convent of Eyneſham did quit their claim an. 1255, and it was granted to the Univerſity, as appears by the officers of the Town, the ſame year, and for which the Univerſity paid forty eight marks in Gerſumam."

"Theſe two purchaſes being over, ſhortly after was held the great Council at Oxford, for reformation of Henry the Third's government; at which time, or ſhortly after, the Univerſity had lent ſome part of this money, left by William of Durham, to the Peers, or great men of the land: However about the year 1262, they made a third purchaſe from Simon of Balinden, a Canon of Litchfield, on the ſouth ſide of their firſt corner houſe in School-ſtreet: Whatever name it had then, 'tis certain it was called Braſenoſe Hall ſhortly after, in the ſurvey 7 Edward I, an. 1279; it coſt 55*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* ſterling, and makes, with the former houſe, the whole front of that College, and had four Schools belonging to it."

"The laſt purchaſe made, whilſt the money continued in the hands of the Univerſity, was in the year 1270: for the then Chancellor, Thomas Beck, gave to one Wymond de Linge, Draper, and his wife Agnes, for a quit-rent of 15*s.* out of two houſes ſtanding now weſt of the Angel Inn in St. Peter's pariſh, ſeven pounds."

"By conſulting the Inquiſition, 7 Edw. I, an. 1279, it will appear, that putting all the prices here mentioned together, the ſum will amount to 118*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and putting all the rents together, mentioned in that ſurvey, the ſum will be 11*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*" (1)

"As to where the College or Hall was firſt placed, it muſt in ſome meaſure proceed upon probabilities, but yet of that nature, that there will be but few that will not readily aſſent to the reaſons that ſhall be given; which are theſe, that they were placed in that Hall, which the firſt of all others was called Univerſity Hall, and now makes part of Braſenoſe College; the reaſon is this, becauſe theſe Scholars being become owners of three Halls, viz. Univerſity Hall, Braſenoſe Hall, and Drogeda or Drowda Hall, it is likely they would rather chuſe to live in one of their own houſes, than in a Hall hired of the Townſmen; and there is no likelihood that they pitched on Braſenoſe Hall, for it was then let at ſuch an high rent, that it would have ſunk more than two of their ſalaries; and as to their other Hall, called Drowday Hall, that was alſo of too high a rent for them; and upon this account they were moſt likely placed in the leaſt of theſe three Halls; a ſecond reaſon is, that probably they were called Univerſity Scholars for their living in Univerſity Hall; but thirdly, and more eſpecially from the proviſion that obliged them to live altogether, and the Delegates had provided alſo, that none ſhould turn them out, or make any Schools of their houſes, without their own conſent." " An account of the purchaſes made with WILLIAM of DURHAM's money, after the remainder of it was transferred into the hands of the Society (an. 1280) to be managed by them in buying additional eſtates to thoſe the Univerſity had before purchaſed for them.

An. 1307, July 2. Two Houſes that formerly belonged to Wymond the Linen Draper, lying in St. Peter's Pariſh. Theſe houſes are ſtill in poſſeſſion of the College.

An. 1307, July 25. A houſe lying in Sckydiard (now called St. Mary lane) in St. Mary's pariſh, bought of William Leyghton, Vicar of Goddington. It was called St. Edward's Hall, and ſold to Oriel College for ever, under a quit-rent, 1486. The ſame perſon alſo paſſed at the ſame time another houſe in St. Peter's, called then, or ſhortly after, Maiden Hall. In 1388 it was ſold to Biſhop Wickham, and now makes part of the South ſide of New College Cloiſter.

An. 1311. The fourth purchaſe was bought of Tho. Sowy, and conſiſted of one houſe and a yard in St. Peter's in the eaſt, and lay on the ſouth ſide of New College Lane, and is now encloſed into Queen's College. This houſe was ſold May 19, 1340, D'no Roberto de Eglesfield, Founder of Queen's.

An. 1332, June 22. The fifth purchaſe was that of Spicer's Hall, bought of the heirs of Adam Feteplace, by William Nadale, and Robert Paterington, where the College now ſtands.

An. 1336. July 7. The ſixth purchaſe was that of Roſe Hall, and White Hall, lying in Kybald ſtreet, in St. John's pariſh, paſſed by Alice, the daughter of Walter Crendon, to Robert Patrington and Jo. Pokelington, and now makes the ſouth part, or Grove of the College, formerly planted with walnut trees, but now cut down.

(1) Ibid. p. 56.

An. 1336,

An. 1336, July 21. Ludlow Hall, the ſeventh purchaſe, in St. Peter's pariſh, was then paſſed to the aforeſaid Robert Patrington and John Pokelington, now included in the College.

An. 1353, May 30. The eighth purchaſe was that by which Roger Lodelow paſſes Olyfant Hall, otherwiſe Unicorn Hall, to Mr. Laur. Radeford: it lay in St. Mildred's, between Braſenoſe and Lincoln College.

An. 1353, May 30. The ninth purchaſe was that by which John Stillego of Hereford paſſed to Mr. Roger Aſhwardby a tenement called Staple Hall, in St. Mildred's pariſh: this Hall ſtood the moſt eaſt of the three Halls the College had together: it was alſo ſometimes called St. Thomas's Hall.

An. 1353, the tenth purchaſe was that of Aula Scuti, or Sheld Hall: this, as appears by another deed relating to it, ſtood between Oliphant Hall on the weſt ſide, and Staple Hall on the eaſt.

An. 1357, after March 25, the eleventh purchaſe was paſſed by John Hertwell and Alice his wife, under the name of a tenement called Stanton Hall, in St. Mary's pariſh, to Roger Aſwordly and Laur. Radeford: This ſtands the next houſe but one to the College, and is called the Three Tun Tavern.

An. 1357, May 1, J. Bereford and Agnes his wife, paſſed a tenement called Hampton Hall, in St. Mildred's pariſh, to Roger Aſhwardly and Laur. Radeford.

An. 1360, Aug. 15, John Bereford paſſed a tenement, afterwards called Sykle Hall, in All Hallows pariſh, to Mr. Wm. Wilton and Henry Hopton: Theſe two laſt tenements, though in ſeveral pariſhes, ſtood next to one another, and are now part of the leſſer quadrangle of Lincoln College, where their Chapel ſtands. Here (at leaſt in part) ends the fifteen or ſixteen Halls, and one Introitus, which Scholars rented and lived in; of which, three were bought by the Univerſity, and 13 by the Fellows of the College, before the great purchaſe made by Laur. Radeford, &c. in the 1360." (1)

" As to Laur. Radeford's purchaſe, the firſt true Deed I meet with (not to mention counterfeit Charters) is from Jo. de Gonewardby to Mr. John de Wormenhale and John Mahu of Whathamſtede, dated after Sept. 1, 1359: Theſe two perſons afterwards paſs the ſame lands to three Maſters, viz. Laurence Radeford, William Wymundam, and Henry Hopton, dated Apr. 25, 1360. Wymundam and Hopton might paſs over their right to Laur. Radeford afterwards."

(1) Ibid. p. 85.

"Laur. Radeford paſſes the ſame houſes and lands to the Scholars of Univerſity Hall in Oxon June 5, 1361, under the names of 7 meſſuages, 8 ſhops, 12 acres of land, 25 of meadow, and 1*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.* quit rent, with ſome other gardens and granges: the worth of all which, as found in the Burſar's Roll 1381, by their rents amounted to 15*l.* odd money: The deed was for two parts in poſſeſſion, the third was in reverſion after the deceaſe of Robert Manſall and Maud his wife, relict of Jo. Goldſmith. I have put all the lands together, though deviſed in the deed; and muſt take notice that no perſon is appointed to be prayed for, but Robert Caldewell, for whom there was a Chaplain to be appointed at firſt; and alſo the deed gives half a mark to every Fellow yearly, and what remained was to go toward the increaſe of more Fellows in the Society." (1)

"But no benefit accrued to the College from this purchaſe; for after a long ſuit between Edmund Fraunceys and Idonia his wife, they were forced to buy or redeem their right with a great ſum of money." (2)

" Betwixt King Edward the Firſt's ſurvey in 1278 or 1279, and the time it was purchaſed, there were three or more owners of it. Firſt, Andrew of Durham, who was one of the Aldermen of the City when that ſurvey was made, and from whom it bare the name of Durham Hall; afterwards it was called Selverne Hall, and at the time it was bought, which was in the year 1332, it was called Spicer's Hall, except that Selvern and Spicer ſhould prove the ſame perſon, the one derived from his name, the other from his trade; for, in the interval of the time above mentioned, Adam Feteplace, who had been many years Mayor, was become the owner of it, and it was bought of his three daughters, who were then heireſſes.

Now this being but a ſingle houſe, and of no greater length forwards than two rooms on a floor, nor of greater length backward than what the preſent quadrangle contains, one can ſcarce think they removed into it, till they had purchaſed two Halls (White Hall and Roſe Hall) that lay behind it, and reached as far ſouthward as a certain ſtreet called Kybald ſtreet, now quite ſhut up and incloſed.——Theſe two Halls came together to the College by purchaſe in the year 1343, with Ludlow Hall, which lay in St. Peter's pariſh, and was not taken into the College till ſome time after; and by the taking that in, the eaſt part of the old quadrangle lay in St. Peter's, and the gate and the weſt part lay in St. Mary's."(2)

" This Society having long borne the name of ' Univerſity Scholars,' it was not poſſible to ſhake off that name on a ſudden; and therefore upon their removal, I ſuppoſe, they called their new lodgings by the name their old ones were vulgarly known by; and to prove this there are ſeveral deeds or leaſes, in which they ſtile themſelves (and others ſtiled them alſo) ' The Maſter and Scholars of the Univerſity of Oxon;' and all the difference put between their old and their new Hall was this, the one was called ' Aula Univerſitatis in vico Scholarum,' and the other ' Aula Univerſitatis in Alto Vico;' but how long this continued I cannot be certain to a day, or a year, but ſhall acquaint the reader about what time I find a variation; for, till the year 1631, it certainly kept its old name of ' Aula Univerſitatis Oxon,' as it appears by Lau. Rudeford's deed, dated that year, which conveys a conſiderable eſtate to the College (bought, at leaſt in part, with the laſt remains of what was owing of William of Durham's money): From that year, and for ſeveral years after, the leaſes run in the name of ' The Maſter and Fellows of the Hall of William of Durham, commonly called Aula Univerſitatis.' And the firſt time I find ' Magna Aula Univerſitatis' added to the other, was in the year 1381, and after that year both the names were promiſcuouſly uſed, till the title was changed by a later Charter from Q. Eliz. What I have writ hitherto is borrowed from deeds and leaſes; but from the year laſt mentioned 1381, we have moſt of the Burſars Rolls remaining with us, and then the ſtile runs thus, ' Computus, &c. of the Burſar of the College of Mr. William of Durham, commonly called Mickle Univerſity Hall, and this title continued till the 14th of Rich. II, 1390, when the ſtile was ſometimes changed into ' Collegii Magnæ Aulæ Univerſitatis,' but in the 23d of Rich. II it returned to the former title of ' The College of William of Durham, &c.' and then again, after ſome years, to ' Micel Hall of the Univerſity,' and ſo mutably as the Burſars pleaſed; but in Q. Eliz. time, till the year 1572 it is oftner ſtiled the ' College of William of Durham,' than barely ' Magna Aula Univerſitatis,' as well in leaſes, as in the Burſars' accounts."

" And it is almoſt manifeſt, that the third ' Little Univerſity Hall' derived its name as a difference from the ' Great Hall' (one ſingle Houſe, or Hall ſtanding betwixt them, and that was Ludlow Hall) and in an old deed belonging to that Hall, I find this Little Univerſity Hall called the tenement of John de Haſele, in the year 1315, and in the year 1343 the tenement of Michael, the ſon of Andrew de Pyrie; and the firſt time I find it in any deed called Little Univerſity Hall is in the year 1379. This Little Univerſity Hall was afterwards bought by the College in the year 1404, and became part of the Maſter's Lodgings; and is made part of the New Buildings, erected with the 5000l. given them by the late famous Phyſician Dr. Radcliffe." " Sir SIMON BENET had been formerly educated in the College, and died about the year 1635.—But his eſtate came not to the College before the death of his Lady, and was ſettled in Chancery about the beginning of the war, 1640, by a certificate from Archb. Laud, who adviſed, that it ſhould be diſpoſed of for four Fellowſhips, four Scholarſhips, and ſeveral other benefits to thoſe of the old foundation. But ſome of Sir Simon's female relations, by the power of their huſbands, Mr. Hambden and others, in the Long Parliament 1649, got this decree reverſed, the number increaſed, and half the places to be ſo reſerved to the Founder's kindred, that no other could be choſen, till after three months notice to come in, and make their claim: But before the year 1660, all the members of this new foundation were diſperſed or broken up, by the failure of their tenants, &c. ſo that both the foundations, the new as well as the old, petitioned in Chancery to have the ſecond ſettlement revoked, and the firſt ratified afreſh; in which laſt decree there was a proviſion made for a yearly anniverſary feſtival, in memory of their honourable benefactor, as was uſual, ſays the decree, in other Colleges, and eight pounds a year allotted for that feſtival, and Simon and Jude's day appointed for the keeping of it: And this was partly done becauſe Sir Simon borrowed his name from one of thoſe Saints, but more eſpecially becauſe he himſelf, who annually cloathed 22 perſons, ſome in one place, ſome in another, ordered that they ſhould have their cloaths given them upon Simon and Jude's day yearly." In the year 1766, the inſide of this Hall received a conſiderable alteration and improvement, by the removal of the fire-place from the centre of the room, which was the uſual mode in our Halls; erecting a chimney on the ſouth ſide; ceiling the roof; putting up a wainſcot, with a ſcreen at the lower end; and ornamenting the whole in the Gothic ſtile. The floor alſo was new paved. The expenſe, amounting to near 1200*l.* was defrayed by the generous contribution of the Maſter and Fellows, and alſo of many others, who were then, or had been, Members of the Society; moſt of whoſe Arms are placed on the wainſcot. The chimney-piece, which is an elegant Gothic ſtone work, was the donation of Sir ROGER NEWDIGATE, Baronet, D. C. L. ſometime Fellow Commoner, and one of the Burgeſſes for the Univerſity; whoſe Arms, impaling his Lady's, are ſuſpended thereon:

QUEEN'S COLLEGE.

This correction we owe to Biſhop Kennett's PAROCHIAL ANTIQUIT. as alſo the rectifying of A. WOOD's aſſertion that the advowſon of Blechingdon church came into the hands of Hen. III, as an eſcheat by the forfeiture of Richard and William Grenevill. In the year 1228, 12-13 of Hen. III, Sir Richard de Preſcote preſented to the church of Blechingdon. (1)

In 1234, which was the 18-19 year of Hen. III, the ſame Sir Richard Preſcote preſented to the church of Blechingdon. (2) In 1261, the 25-26 of Edward I, Thomas de Capella was Parſon of Blechingdon, and being a Clerk in Chancery was excuſed his attendance by a letter from the King; (3) and this ſame year he reſigned it: whereupon Hugh Muſgrave and Maud his wife preſented Richard Muſgrave to it, and Nicholas Trimenell and Mabil his wife alſo preſented another perſon to the living; but on a trial de jure Patronatus, the latter perſons withdrew their preſentation. (5) In the year 1311, the 4th and 5th of Edward II, there was a trial at law for the patronage of the church of Blechingdon between the King as plaintiff, and Henry de la Wade, John ſon of John de Croxford, Maud de Muſgrave and John de Lou, on the calends of May, and the King recovered his right of preſentation; yet on the 13th of the calends of April 1317, Thomas de Muſgrave preſented a Clerk to the church of Blechingdon, which was then vacant. (6)

By this it clearly appears that the advowſon was veſted from and before the 12th and 13th of Henry III in the family of Preſtecote, and continued with his deſcendants till the 4th and 5th of Edward II, when it came by lapſe to the King, who preſented for that turn, and on the deceaſe of the Miniſter it fell again into the family of Muſgrave, (in the 10-11 year of the ſame King) who preſented to the Living.

If this had ever been eſcheated to Hen. III, it would have continued in poſſeſſion full to the Crown, and Edward II would have had no need of recourſe to law to preſent but once to the Living, becauſe it would have been his own abſolute right through the eſcheature: from this it is evident it never did eſcheat, at the time mentioned by A. Wood, neither were the Grenvilles ever poſſeſſed of the Patronage.

The following Account of the Founder is taken from Gough's Sepulchral Monuments in Great Britain, Part I, p. 102; who quotes Burn's History of Weſtmoreland, Vol. I, 566—568; and MSS of E. R. Mores.

IN the Treaſury of this College is a braſs plate, found in the old Chapel, which Mr. Mores aſcribes to Robert Eglesfeld.

It repreſents a prieſt in a cap and rich rochet powdered with fleurs de lis in lozenges, and faced and hemmed with a different border, and faſtened on his breaſt with a jewel. The ſleeves of his black gown are faced with fur.

This munificent man was a native of Eglesfeld, a ſmall village in Cumberland, and Chaplain to K. Edward III, who preſented him to the Rectory of Burgh in Weſtmoreland 1332, in the perſon of Adam de Eglesfeld, his proxy, and he was ordained prieſt at Carliſle in Lent following. This church was appropriated to the College by Pope Clement VI in 1344. Dr. Todd ſays he was the ſon of John Eglesfeld and Beatrix his wife, and he is probably the perſon who held the manor of Ravenſwyke, 1 Edw. III; which he afterwards granted to his College to hold of the King in capite. From the inquiſition taken 14 Edw. III, 1341, it ſhould ſeem he, or ſome relation of both his names died on or about that year.

The old Liber obitalis of the College dates his death 2 cal. Jun. 1349.

'Robertus Eglesfield, Cumbrienſis, ſacræ theologiæ baccalaureus, Reginæ Philippæ uxoris Edwardi capellanus, rector de Burgo ſubtus Staneſmore, in

(1) Thomas Tanner was firſt a Member of this College and B. A. then Chaplain and Fellow of All Souls College, and afterward Canon of Chriſt Church.

Dei

Dei gloriam, Eccleſiæ bonum, et bonarum literarum propagationem Collegium hoc Reginæ fundavit, A. D. 1340, et anno regni Edw. III, 15. Obiit iſte Robertus, A. D. 1349, 2 calend. Junii.'

The firſt mention of his ſucceſſor in the vicarage is 1369; for we have no other circumſtances of his life or death but his moſt beneficial inſtitution for the emolument chiefly of perſons born within the counties of Weſtmoreland and Cumberland; which counties, above all others, were overrun with ignorance and barbariſm, by the perpetual hoſtilities between the borders on both ſides; and which has been productive of infinite advantage, not only to the ſaid two counties, but the kingdom in general, in furniſhing many able and learned men, both in church and ſtate.

I ſhall not meddle any farther with the time of his death, than the proofs I ſhall bring to aſcertain the place of his interment will allow; which, though they are not poſitive evidence, yet will make it appear at leaſt highly probable that he was buried in the Chapel of his own College. They are theſe:

1. In the computus of Sir John de Hoton, from the 13th of Oct. 1351, to the 13th of July following, is this article:

'Lib'at. p' cera et vino p' capell. { In p'mis p' cera ixs. pro xvii li. et qu'rt. de q'bus xi lib. lib' abantur aule reg' p' cera exp'ſa in funerac'one Rob'ti Egilsfeld.'

Notwithſtanding which, ſome people ſay that he might have been buried elſewhere, as for inſtance, at Burgh; to which I reply, that had he been buried at Burgh, or indeed any where but here, this article would not have been placed amongſt the expenſes of the Chapel, but under the title of expenſ. forinſecæ.

2. The ſecond argument I ſhall offer is a negative proof of his not being buried but at his own College; for had he been buried any where elſe, doubtleſs ſome of his Fellows would have been preſent at his funeral; and if ſo the expenſes of their journey would appear among the exepenſ. forinſ. of the year; but no ſuch expenſes are mentioned.

3. There was formerly a tradition that he was buried here; and that the plate under the communion table in the old Chapel was deſigned for him. This Dr. Shaw has often told me.

4. All the pictures of Robert Eglesfeld are exactly like the effigy repreſented by this plate; they were taken from it, as Dr. Shaw told me."

A Copy of an impreſſion from this braſs, taken by Mr. Mores, is given in the above work.

The Life of WILLIAM of WAYNFLETE was written in Latin by John Budden, D. C. L. then Moral Philoſophy Reader in this College, of whom ſee more among the King's Profeſſors of Civil Law, and the Principals of New Inn Hall. He printed it at Oxford in 1602, 4to. and dedicated it to Nicholas Bond, D. D. then Preſident. It was reprinted in 1681 in Bates's Vitæ ſelectorum aliquot virorum, &c. 4to. In the Archives of this College Library there is preſerved a MS (No. 227) entitled 'Wainflet's Memoriall, or a true Hiſtoriographicall Narration of the Life, and Actes, and Death of that famous Prelate W. of Wainflet, B. of Wincheſter,' &c. a Poem, written by Peter Heylin in his younger years (firſt a Demy, afterward Fellow of this College, and D. D.) and dedicated 'to the right worſhipful and reverend Mr. Dr. Langton, the moſt worthy Preſident of Magdalen Colledge.' It has no date; but as it mentions the death of Q. Anne, and yet ſpeaks of K. James as ſtill on the throne, it muſt have been written between 1619 and 1625. Heylin was born Nov. 29, 1599.

(50)——add The celebrated Stamford Antiquary, Francis Peck, tells a ſtory of Dr. Humphrey out of a LIFE of Robert Earl of Leiceſter, 8vo. 1727, to this effect: Queen Elizabeth coming to Oxford in the year 1566, was received at Wolvercote by the Chancellor, Vicechancellor, certain Heads of Houſes, and others of the Univerſity, who came out to meet her; and one of them having made a ſpeech, 'ſhe then held out her hand to the Orator and Doctors; and as Dr. H. drew near to kiſs it, "Mr. Doctor," ſays the Queen ſmiling, "that looſe gown becomes you mighty well. I wonder your notions ſhould be ſo narrow." This Humphreys, it ſeems, was at the head of the Puritan party, and had oppoſed the Eccleſiaſtical habits with great warmth.' (DESID. CURIOSA, lib. VII, N. 18: and Q. Eliz. PROGRESSES collected by Nichols.) A copy of Latin Verſes by Humphrey is prefixed to the Martyrology of John Fox, who in 1545 had reſigned his Fellowſhip of this College, 'merely, as 'twas thought to prevent expulſion,' ſays A. Wood. Oliver Cromwell was fond of Muſic, and what may ſeem ſurpriſing, was particularly fond of the muſic of an Organ: as appears from the following anecdote. In the Grand Rebellion, when the Organ at Magdalen College in Oxford, among others, was taken down, Cromwell ordered it to be conveyed to Hampton Court, where it was placed in the great Gallery; and one of Cromwell's favourite amuſements was to be entertained with this Inſtrument at leiſure hours. It continued there till the Reſtoration, when it was returned to the original owners, and was the ſame that remained in the Choir of the College till within theſe 20 years. (Warton's OBS. on Spenſer, 8vo. 1762, Vol. II, Note on p. 326.) Sir John Hawkins likewiſe cites this Note in his Hiſtory of Muſic. But Mr. Warton produces no authority for this anecdote. This Organ is now in the Church of Tewkeſbury, Glouceſterſhire.

P. 350, N. (87)—add It ſeems as if theſe Statues were at firſt coloured, the traces of paint being diſcernible on many of them. But the 71ſt page of Wake's REX PLATONICUS (12°, 5th ed. 1635) puts the matter beyond a doubt. They are there ſaid to be 'vivis coloribus—expreſſæ.' The figure of Moſes is mentioned as being habited 'togâ cæruleâ:' and 'Medicus purpuratus' occurs in a few lines after. The ſame expreſſions are to be met with in Mr. Reeks's Œdipus Magdalenenſis, Explicatio viz. Imaginum, &c. MS in the Archives of the College Library, written when Dr. Henry Clerk was Preſident, between 1671 and 1687. Theſe figures are executed in a ſtyle ſuperior to moſt works of ſculpture of their age; and it is highly probable that they were done from deſigns by Holbein. It is certain that there is one figure, profeſſedly by Holbein, in the Moriæ Encomium of Eraſmus, which is preciſely the ſame in point of attitude and drapery with that which is here ſuppoſed to repreſent a Phyſician. As for Mr. Reeks's Explication, the ſubſtance of which is printed (but not quite accurately) in the Oxford Guide, from the MS above cited; though it may in the main be right, yet in ſome inſtances perhaps it is not ſo. Particularly, 'the Dog, the Dragon, and the Deer,' on the Eaſt ſide, are made to ſignify 'Flattery, Envy, and Timidity;' but it ſeems more probable that theſe three Figures, and perhaps a few of the others, were placed here on an Heraldic account. The collared Greyhound (for the Dog is of that ſpecies) is known to have been borne as a Supporter by K. Henry VII, and by K. Henry VIII, in the beginning of his reign; the Dragon was conſtantly one of the Supporters, and the favourite badge of the Tudor branch, then on the Throne; and the Antelope was that of the Houſe of Lancaſter, and particularly of K. Henry VI, the FOUNDER's eſpecial Patron. Now that the beaſt which Mr. R. calls a Deer is in reality no other than the Antelope of the Heralds, is very evident from the form of its head and horns, and eſpecially from the gilt Coronet with which it is gorged, and the Chain which is reflexed over its back: which ſurely are no very characteriſtic emblems of timidity, and which as certainly are the Decorations of the Royal Antelope.

P. 351, l. 3——add In much the ſame ſtrain of juſt Panegyric are the encomiums on this College in Sir Iſaac Wake's REX PLATONICUS.

——— l. 20——add Mr. Byres of Rome ſaw the picture in June 1787, and pronounced it to be by the hand of Ludovico Caracci. Moſt of the Cognoſcenti have likewiſe thought that it came from the Bologneſe School. The little figures in the back-ground have puzzled them all. Theſe figures have certainly the appearance of coming from another hand: and it is remarkable that they very nearly reſemble ſome in Guido's Martyrdom of St. Andrew, a famous picture which he painted at Rome in competition with Domenichino. This perhaps is what has induced ſeveral judges to ſuppoſe the picture a work of that Maſter. Guido was a pupil of Ludovico.

The whole of the Antechapel a few years ſince was adorned with an elegant new Pulpit, Lecturer's Seat, and other ſeats, and alſo a new pavement.

P. 351, l. 26——add The two new ones were done by William Price, jun. who died in 1765, 'whoſe colours (ſaith Walpole) are fine, whoſe drawing good, and whoſe taſte in Ornaments and Moſaic is far ſuperior to any of his predeceſſors, is equal to the antique, to the good Italian Maſters, and only ſurpaſſed by his own ſingular modeſty.' Price alſo repaired ſome of the windows at New College. (ANECD. of PAINTING, Vol. II, 4to. p. 18; 8vo. p. 28.)

——— add Early in the morning of Feb. 25, 1786, two perſons, by means of falſe keys, made their way into this College Chapel, and ſtole from the Altar a large ſilver offertory plate (with an Inſcription on it) and two pair of tall maſſy Candleſticks. One pair was of ſilver gilt, and was purchaſed many years ago by the College. The others were the gift of Sir Bryan Broughton Delves, Baronet, M. A. and Fellow Commoner; and were of French plate, of a very elegant form, after an antique, highly wrought and double gilt, with Sir Bryan's Arms, and a ſhort Inſcription on them. They coſt 70 Guineas.

Arms—Quarterly; firſt and fourth, Arg. two Bars Gules; on a Canton of the ſecond a Croſs of the firſt: Second and third, Gules, a Chevron Arg. fretty Or, between three Delves Sab. With the Arms of Ulſter. Broughton. Delves.

One of the perſons concerned in the robbery, being appehended on ſuſpicion, afterwards turned evidence; in conſequence of which his accomplice and two acceſſories were taken up, tried, and condemned. The two acceſſories were tranſported, and the other executed according to his ſentence.

A handſome pair of Candleſticks has ſince been given by the Preſident. They bear this Inſcription:

'D. D. G. HORNE, Præſes, necnon Decan. Cantuar. 1787.'

A. Wood gives the following account of the Bells at Oſney Abbey, &c. in his MS Collections for the Hiſtory of the City of Oxford, in the Aſhm. Muſeum, fol. 219, a. " At the weſt end of the Church was ſituated the Campanile or Tower, which enduring the brunt ſtood firm and whole within theſe 17 years (till after 1644): It contained a large and melolodious ring of Bells, the beſt as was thought in England, as John Major, a Scottiſh Hiſtorian, (De Geſtis Scotorum, lib. iii. cap. 1.) reporteth in theſe words: 'Campanis Cænobii de Oſneya nullæ in Anglia meliores putantur.' At the firſt foundation there were but three beſides the Saints and Litany Bells, but by Abbot Leech encreaſed to the number of ſeven (ex MS Anonimi Ouſney de vitis Abbatum ejuſdem penes ep'um Oxon): which, as I find out of an old Rationale (inter vet: Chart: Ouſney) ſometime belonging to the Church, and which ſpeaks of the office of every bell in ringing on ſeveral Feſtivals and tolling of knells, were chriſtned and called by the names of Hauteclere, Douce, Clement, Auſtyn, Marie, Gabriel, and John: All which for the moſt part toward the ſuppreſſion (being before broken and recaſt) had gotten new names, which which by tradition we have thus——Mary and Jeſus, Meribus and Lucas, New bell and Thomas, Conger and Goldeſton: which Thomas, now commonly called Great Tom of Chriſt Church, had this inſcription not long ſince remaining upon it: 'In Thomæ laude reſono Bim Bom ſine fraude.' It being one of the biggeſt of their bells, was accounted ſix feet in its diameter, which is 18 feet in compaſs, and therefore reputed to be as big as Edward Bell at Weſtminſter, or Dunſtan Bell at Canterbury, ſpoken of by Biſhop Godwin—(Com. de Præſul. Angl. in Cant: et in Vita H. Chichele.) Dr. Treſham, it ſeems, baptized this bell when 'twas tranſported to Chriſt Church (of which place he was Canon) with the name of Mary, for joy (as Dr. Humphreys ſaith—Vita Juelli, part. iii. f. 81) of Q. Mary's reign; and being about that time Vicechancellor of the Univerſity, and hearing it accidentally ring when learned Juell was with him about other buſineſs, burſt out into theſe words—'O bellam et ſuavem harmoniam, O pulchram Mariam, ut ſonat muſice, ut tinuit melodice, ut placet auribus mirifice'—thus he—and ſo much was the old man delighted with the noiſe of it, that he promiſed the Students (Fox in Q. Mary, f. 1648) if they would come to maſs, which was then reſtored in Q. Mary's days, to get the Lady bell at Bampton, of which place he was Vicar, and others added to it, and make it the ſweeteſt ring of bells in England."

REGNI HENRICI
OCTAVI REGIS
ANGLIÆ XX MENSIS
VERO IVNII XV
POSITUM
P IOHEM EPM LIDEM.'

The following explanation of the laſt line has been communicated by Mr. WARTON.

Before the Reformation, it was cuſtomary for our Biſhops to conſtitute Suffragan Biſhops, who had in many things full epiſcopal powers: theſe had their Titles from places in partibus Infidelium, where they could not, and where it never was intended, they ſhould exerciſe authority. Thus Ep'us Lidenſis was from a place under the Patriarch of Jeruſalem. Of this Patriarchate, ſee the GEOGRAPHIA SACRA of Carolus a Sancto Paulo, with L. Holſtein's Notes, Amſtel. 1703, p. 299. 'Nec tamen, id, &c.' It had 'tres Sedes [Sees] ſubjectas, nimirum, Bethleemitanam, Ebronenſem, et Lyddenſem.' Ibid. p. 302. Lydda was ſometimes called Dioſpolis, 'quæ Lydda. Ælius epiſcopus Lyddenſis interfuit Conſilio Nicæno primo.' Ibid. p. 305. See alſo ibid. ad calc. Parergon. p. 59. 'Patriarchatus Hieroſolymitanus habet ſub ſe hos Metropolos infra annotatos; et hos Suffraganeos, quorum primus eſt Lydda, &c.' Again, this Patriarch has 'hos Suffraganeos, Ebronenſem, Lidenſem, &c.' Ibid. p. 72. And here we have the ſpelling LIDENSIS, as on this Foundation ſtone.

The Ep'us Lidenſis is John Holte, Suffragan, under that title, to the Biſhop of London. He was ſucceſſor to T. Bele, who was living about 1520. A. Wood ſays, 'In that titular See ſucceeded one John Holt, but whether educated in this Univerſity I cannot tell. He lived moſtly in the Town of Bury

Bury St. Edmund in Suffolk; where dying about the 12th of Aug. 1540, was buried in the Church of our bleſſed Lady S. Mary there, in our Lady's Iſle near to the head of John Holt, Gent.' ATH. OXON. I. 666. He was employed on this occaſion, as living at no great diſtance from Ipſwich. He is thus mentioned in Henr. Wharton's MS Liſt of Engliſh Suffragan Biſhops, in Lambeth Library: 'Johannes Holte, Ep'us Lyddenſis, obiit 1540.'

In the Abbey Church of Dorcheſter near Oxford, is an Inſcription for one of the Priors, with the ſame title, and the ſpelling the ſame: but having been publiſhed incorrectly, and now going faſt to decay, the following tranſcript is here given: It is round the verge of a large white grave-ſtone, on which is the figure of a Biſhop, in the middle of the Chancel:

'Hic jacet d'us Rogerus quo'dam p'or p'oratus de Rauton in com. Staffordie, poſtea abbas mon. de Dorcheſter lincol. dioſes. necnon ep'us lidenſis cujus anime propicietur d. Amen.'

Brown Willis ſays this Prior Roger was Suffragan to the Biſhop of Salisbury, and died in 1518. HIST. of Abbies, Vol. II, p. 176.

Our Author no doubt reſerved his recital of the ancient ſepulchral Monuments in this Church for his intended Hiſtory of the City of Oxford; but having left nothing relating to them in his MS Collections for that Hiſtory, which are depoſited in his Study at the Aſhmolean Muſeum, the following account of them, and alſo of the Church, is chiefly taken from Willis's SURVEY of this Cathedral.

The Church is built in the ſhape of a Croſs, with a Spire Steeple in the middle. The Nave and croſs Ailes were raftered under in brackets and pannels like ſome of our beſt wrought parochial churches; and the Choir and Ailes on each ſide all vaulted or arched with ſtone, by the Cardinal beforementioned: which ſtone work was brought from Oſney Abbey. The length from eaſt to weſt is only 154 feet, though before the Cardinal pulled down three pillars or arches of the weſt part, it was 50 feet longer. The length of the croſs Aile from north to ſouth, excluding the old Clock houſe is 102 feet, and including it is about 120. Height of the Roof, in the weſtern part, is 41 feet and a half; and in the Choir part 37 feet and a half. Breadth of the Nave and ſide Ailes 54 feet; and height of the preſent Steeple 144 feet. The length of the Choir 80 feet.

The Builders of this Church were chiefly the Priors, who began it in K. Henry the firſt's reign. The Latin Chapel, dedicated no doubt to the Virgin Mary, was built about the end of K. Henry the third's reign; as the Chapter Houſe ſeems to have been; and which opens into the eaſt Cloiſter.

To

To whom the old Graveſtones belonged I cannot pretend to aſcertain; though I am ſatisfied, five or ſix of them that have croſſes cut on them, were in memory of ancient Priors, or religious perſons of this Convent, and that others were laid over eſpecial benefactors.

I have met with an old will of CHRISTIAN, daughter of Ralph Paddy, wife of Jordan Rufus, a benefactreſs of ſome lands 1242, who bequeathed her body to be interred here; as did EDMUND de LUDLOW, Rector of Beckley, temp. Edw. III, whoſe name is yet viſible on one of the graveſtones. I alſo find that NICHOLAS CARENT, Dean of Wells, willed anno 1467 his ſepulture here; as did likewiſe HENRY NOERS and JULIAN his wife, daughter of Henry Caldre, bequeath their demeaſnes at Churchill to this Convent, together with their bodies to be here interred. I have alſo ſeen that JOHN PEGGIE appointed to be buried in St. Mary's Chapel in this Priory Church: And in an account of perſons interred here (beſides the aforeſaid) I find it mentioned, that WILLIAM ASTELL, Burgeſs of Oxford, BAWDINUS de PARTES and his wife, and WILLIAM de STRATFORD, who with the conſent of Benet or Benedicta his wife, gave Elsfield to this Convent temp. Edv. I; and alſo JOHN and RICHARD HAMOND, and JOHN de ST. FRIDESWYDE's, who lived temp. Edv. III, were all of them buried here. Wherefore that many of the eighteen old Graveſtones now lying in that part of the Church called the Dean and Canons' Ailes (removed thither ſeveral of them from other parts of the Church) belonged to them I make no queſtion; eſpecially as there are on ſome of them the very impreſſions of men and women, and others of ſingle men; the largeſt of which, being ſeemingly of an Eccleſiaſtic, I ſhould judge to have belonged to Dean CARENT.

As to the ancient raiſed Monuments or Tombs before Queen Elizabeth's time, theſe being only five, I ſhall thus account for them.

The firſt placed under the great window in the north croſs Aile, which had on it the effigies of a perſon in braſs praying, and an inſcription at bottom torn off, was, as I am not only ſatisfied from the faſhion of it, made in King Henry the ſeventh's time, but almoſt aſſured that it was erected in memory of JAMES SOUCH or ZOUCH, who died 1503. For in the Prerog. Office, London, I have met with a will dated Oct. 16, 1503, and proved Febr. 12 following of the ſaid Souch; who appoints to be buried under this very window, and a Tomb to be erected over him in the midſt of the ſaid window, and for licence to do ſo bequeaths 30l. to the Convent to the vaulting or adorning this part of the Church, and 40s. to the Prior for his grave, and as much to the Convent and Univerſity to pray for him. (1)

(1) This Tomb has an inkhorn and pencaſe in compartments at the front and ſides, and nothing elſe remaining to aſcertain it. Stowe, in his HIST. of London, p. 48, ſpeaking of the proceedings of the inſurgents under Wat Tyler in the reign of King Richard II, ſays, 'They took in hand to behead all men of law, as well apprentices as utter barriſters and old juſtices, with all the jurors of the country whom they might get into their hands. They ſpared none whom they thought to be learned, eſpecially if they found any to have a pen and inkhorne about him: they pulled off his hood, and all with one voyce crying, Hale him out, and cut off his head.'

The

The other four ancient Tombs are all between the reſpective arches, dividing the Divinity or Latin Chapel from the middle north Aile.

The loweſt of theſe is of a man in armour, and is reported to belong to Sir HENRY de BATHE, a Juſtice of the King's Bench; Juſticiary of England, temp. Hen. III, 1238, who died 1261. It contains his effigies lying on his tomb, with whiſkers, gorget of mail, and helmet pointed, terminating in a nob. (1)

Under his head a Bull's head Gul. and at his feet a Hound couchant Argent, collared: upon his breaſt 3 Garbs Or. With theſe Arms about the Monument:

At each end—Arg. a Chevron Sab. between two Greyhounds rampant, combatant, in Chief, and one rampant in Baſe of the laſt: Impaling; Azure, a Feſs Argent between three Garbs Or. (2) ——— ———

At the ſides——Argent, &c. as before: Impaling; Sable, a Bordure Argent, charged with Cinquefoiles Gules. ——— ———

Argent, &c. as before: Impaling; Barry nebulee of ſix, Argent and Gules D'Aumery. ———

Argent, &c. as before. ———

Argent, &c. as before: Impaling; Or, three Piles Gules; a Canton Ermine. Baſſet. ———

Argent, &c. as before: Impaling; Gules, three Lucies hauriant Arg. Lucie. ———

The next above him is the effigies of an Eccleſiaſtic lying on a Tomb, ſuppoſed to be one of the Priors of St. Frideſwyde's, and was probably in memory of Prior Philip, who died about 1190, or Guymond the firſt Prior, by whoſe care this Convent was re-eſtabliſhed an. 1111, and the preſent Church began to be edified. He died about 1149.

At his feet is a Lion, but neither Inſcription or Arms. (3)

(1) How could any one conceive the effigy of a man in armour to have been intended for Sir Henry de Bathe, a Juſticiary of England. Surely this is the firſt inſtance of a Judge being laid in armour on a Tomb. If he had been habited ſimilar to Sir John de Stonare, (Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench 1330—— ob. 1355) whoſe figure is on a table tomb in the church of Dorcheſter, Oxfordſhire, there might have been room for ſuch a conjecture; if the Arms had not proved otherwiſe: but in this caſe neither Armour or Arms will admit the report to be true.

(2) This Impaling is ſtill to be ſeen in one of the windows adjoining: ſee p. 465.

(3) This Tomb is generally aſcribed to PHILIP, third Prior of St. Frideſwyde's; who finiſhed the preſent Church, erected the beautiful Shrine of the Patroneſs ſtill remaining, two arches above him, into which he tranſlated her remains 1180, and wrote an account

The next contains the effigies of the Lady ELIZABETH MONTACUTE, ſometime wife to William Baron Montacute, ſon and heir of Simon de Montacute, anceſtor of the Montacutes earls of Saliſbury, and high in favour with Edw. II. (1) She afterwards was married to Thomas Lord Furnival, and was daughter of Sir Peter de Montfort of Beldeſert Caſtle in Warwickſhire. She died and was buried here in 1353 (27 Edv. III) having founded in this Priory Church of St. Frideſwyde a Chantry for two regular prieſts, to pray for her ſoul, her two huſbands, and other relations' ſouls. It was aſſigned to two ſecular prieſts by the Biſhop of Lincoln, 1380, (PAT. Ric. II, P. 3, m. 23:) who were to celebrate near St. Frideſwyde's Shrine in the Chapel of the Holy Virgin. For its endowment ſhe gave Stockwell meadow, now belonging to this College, that is, about one half of Chriſt Church meadow, parted from the northern half, or Frideſwyde's meadow, by what was called Sheerlake: (2) (PAT. 19 Edv. III. REGISTR. Priorat. S. Frideſw. MS. f. 293, 294, 295.) On the Tomb lies her ſtatue ſet in marble with two angels ſupporting her head, and at her feet a hound couchant. The ſlab and figure lie a good way back from the ledge of the altar tomb, on whoſe ſouth front are figures in pairs, and between them ſhields on which are theſe Arms:

Argent, three Lozenges in Feſs Gules. Montacute.
Theſe Arms occur three times.

In the middle are two arches ſiding a larger containing one figure, and on the ſpandrils the above Arms and alſo the following:

Bendy of ten Or and Azure. Montfort.
Theſe Arms occur twice.

In a quatrefoil at the head, the Virgin and Child between an Angel and an Eagle (the ſymbols of Matthew and John) with ſcrolls, and the ſame Arms over each. At the feet a figure in long hair, and a mantle, between a Lion account of her life and miracles. He died before 1225, but in what year is uncertain. Biſhop Tanner and A. Wood (MS. 49——) make him flouriſh 1180; Bp Kennet (PAROCH. ANTIQ. p. 144) and A. Wood (ANNALS, an. 1180) 1189. In this diverſity of opinions we may ſuppoſe the Monument to have been erected to one or other of theſe Biſhops in a late period, to which Mr. Lethieullier aſſigns it, whoſe drawing is copied in Gough's MON. INSCRIPT. p. *36.

(1) By William, Baron Montacute, who died 13 Edw. III, ſhe had four ſons and ſix daughters; William, earl of Saliſbury, Simon Bp of Ely, John and Edward. Of the daughters, Maud and Iſabel were ſucceſſive Abbeſſes of Barking, Eſſex. Dugdale, (BAR. I, 644) gives her only one ſon, William, created earl of Salisbury, 2 Edw. III, and buried in the Whitefriars, London, 17 Edw. III. Gough's MON. INSCRIPT. p. 105.

(2) Theſe two meadows are ſurrounded by an agreeable walk, lately much improved by plantations judiciouſly diſpoſed. They are alſo bounded on the eaſt by the Cherwell, on the ſouth by the river Iſis, on the weſt by a branch of the ſame river, and on the north by the White Walk, which was made in the beginning of the year 1717, and is a terrace upwards of two furlongs in length and fifty feet wide, ſhaded on each ſide by lofty elms.

and Bull (the ſymbols of Mark and Luke) with ſcrolls, on the latter of which can juſt be diſtinguiſhed Lucas ℳ——: the Arms here are gone. Her head dreſs is of a reticulated pattern, and her ſleeves embroidered with Roſes and Fleurs de lis alternately in rondeaux.

This Lady MONTACUTE was alſo a Benefactreſs to building the Cloiſters of this Monaſtery, and a ſhield of her Arms, the ſame that appear on her Tomb, are yet to be ſeen, among the ramifications of the eaſtern extremity, on the vaulting of the eaſtern pane to the weſt.

The uppermoſt or laſt is the Shrine of St. FRIDESWYDE. This is a neat and elegant ſtructure erected over a Tomb, which had on it the effigies of a man and woman in braſs, which are torn off, ſaid to be in memory of Didane and Saffride, the ſaid St. Frideſwyde's parents.

About the year 730, Didane, a petty king in theſe parts, is ſaid to have founded a Nunnery here to the honour of St. Mary and All Saints, which conſiſted of twelve religious Virgins of noble birth, under the government of his own daughter Frideſwyde, who being buried here, and afterwards canonized for a Saint, this Monaſtery in proceſs of time was dedicated to her memory, and called almoſt always by her name. (In ſome few of the old Charters temp. Hen. I, it is called 'the Church of the holy Trinity in Oxford,' as Brian Twyne, Ↄ-C° p. 115, ex Regiſtro S. Fridiſwidæ.) But the Nuns having been diſperſed by the Daniſh wars, this Church came into the poſſeſſion of ſecular Canons, and was burnt to the ground A. D. 1004: afterwards it was rebuilt, and better endowed for them by King Ethelred. A certain King, before the Norman conqueſt, is ſaid to have expelled theſe Canons, and to have given this Monaſtery to the Monks of Abbendon, (Capgrave in vitâ S. Frideſwidæ) for ſome few years, and then to have reſtored the Canons. This may perhaps account for that in Leland's COLLECT. Vol. III, p. 72, out of the Rocheſter Chronicle, viz. 'A. D. 1049, reſtitutio Canonicorum S. Frideſwidæ.'

St. Frydeſwyde died Oct. 19, 740, as Creſſy tells us; on which day here was a celebrated fair kept before the gates of this College.

Her Shrine was at firſt placed in a Chapel on the ſouth ſide, where it continued for ſome ages almoſt forgotten, and defaced by fire and age: but in 1180 (though another ſays in 1179—Fox's ACTS and MON. Lib. IV, Vol. I, p. 299) it was with great pomp and ſolemnity in the preſence of the King and many of the Nobility tranſlated hither, where, according to the pretences of thoſe times, it worked many miracles. In 1289 this old Shrine being again almoſt worn out, a new one was prepared, in which her bones were laid by William (De la Corner) Biſhop of Sarum, Edmund Earl of Cornwall, &c. And being adored till the diſſolution of the religious Houſes, it was then, 30 Hen. VIII, amongſt others taken down, and all the offerings were conveyed into the King's Treaſury; ſo that the bones left behind were only feigned, which laid there till the beginning of Q. Elizabeth: for we read (Ibid. Vol. II; and Hiſt. de exhumatione Katherinæ nuper uxoris Petri Martyris, Martyris, by James Calfhill, D. D. 1562, 8°.) that Peter Martyr's wife, who was burned here 1552, was taken up at the command of the Viſitors (1556) and buried in a dunghill, ſhe being then eſteemed an heretic: but when Q. Elizabeth came to the crown ſhe was taken up again, and her bones ſo mixed with St. Frideſwyde's, and both buried together, that if it ſhould happen ſhe ſhould hereafter be taken up they ſhould not diſtinguiſh her bones from St. Frideſwyde's: upon which this epitaph was laid:

'Hic requieſcit religio cum ſuperſtitione.'

A. Wood was told in 1661, by Barten Holyday, D. D. Archd. of Oxford, that this Monument ſtood on the north ſide of the Choir, in the middle between two pillars, where the ſinging men ſit: That it was ſurrounded with iron rails, with her effigies on it, in the manner of a Votareſs, and her head ſupported by two Angels, &c. That in Dean Duppa's time it was taken away, and in the removing was opened, where they ſaw a perfect effigies, with many ribbons about it, as alſo bay leaves and other things. He ſaid afterwards, that the monument ſo removed was one of thoſe ſtanding in the Divinity Chapel. If ſo, it cannot be St. Frideſwyde's, but Lady Montacute's; for of thoſe that ſtand, there is not any with the effigies of a woman, but the ſaid Lady's. Probably St. Frideſwyde's Monument ſtood on the north ſide of the Choir at the upper end, where is ſome ſign of an arch, &c. (1)

At each ſide of the Dial are the Arms of SOMERSET or BEAUFORT, with Supporters, Motto, &c. the one enſigned with the Coronet of a Marquis; the other with a Creſt—a Portcullis, &c.

P. 529, after l. 11——add The HALL was ornamented with a new Ceiling, Wainſcot, Chimney piece, &c. about the year 1772.

At the upper end is a Portrait of Sir THOMAS POPE, the FOUNDER; three-quarters length; in a gown of black ſattin, faced with luſerne ſpots:

Motto—'QUOD TACITUM VELIS NEMINI DIXERIS.'

In this College there are five Portraits of him, all of the ſame dimenſions, dreſs and attitude. A ſixth, a moſt high-finiſhed old portrait, was lately given by the College to the Picture Gallery at Oxford, inſtead of another now in the Library. One of theſe ſix, and the oldeſt, came to the College 1596—Ex Comp. Anni. Another is mentioned as hanging in the Chapel 1634—Ex Comp. Anni. One of all theſe which is now in the Hall, was painted by Francis Potter, a curious Mechanic and Mathematician, and a Member of the College, about 1637. Another, mentioned above, was painted in 1665, at the expenſe of the College, for the Picture Gallery. This is now in the College Library. Another lately purchaſed, a copy of Holbein, the painter unknown, is in the Burſary. There is a ſeventh at Tyttenhanger in Hertfordſhire. They are all ſuppoſed to be copies from a valuable picture by Hans Holbein, in the poſſeſſion of the Earl of Guildford at Wroxton. It is not, however, quite improbable that Holbein might have painted ſome of the ſuppoſed copies.—Sir Thomas Pope ſate to Hans Holbein, for his picture, in the chamber within the gallery gate-houſe at Whitehall, deſigned by Hans Holbein, and lately demoliſhed. Hans Holbein painted many of his pictures in this chamber, which was uſed by King Henry the eighth as a ſtudy or library.' (Warton's LIFE of Sir T. Pope, 2d edit. 8vo. p. 164, N. m.)

In the Burſary of this College is an old Portrait of Dame ELIZABETH POWLETT, relict of Sir T. POPE, FOUNDER, and afterward wife to Sir Hugh Powlett, Knight of the Garter, &c. painted, as I judge from the drapery and the age of the countenance, about the middle of Q. Elizabeth's reign; by which ſhe appears to be handſome. This picture was in the College at leaſt before 1613. It is mentioned in Comp. Burſ. Coll. 1612-13. I have been told that this picture was painted by Sir Antonio More, portrait and hiſtory painter to Philip and Mary. Several of his pictures were in the collection of K. Charles the firſt, and at Sir Philip Sydenham's at Brympton in Somerſetſhire, a family nearly related to Lady Powlett. More had one hundred ducats for his common portraits. He died in 1575. I rather think this picture is a copy of an original by More.' (Ibid. p. 210, N. f.)

In the Burſary alſo are half length Portraits of RALPH KETTELL, D. D. Preſident, in a brown furred gown, and of RALPH BATHURST, D. M. Preſident; and alſo Dean of Wells.

In the centre of the Hall is a braſs Column and Pedeſtal with this Inſcription round it:

'RICARDUS BECKFORD Promus D. D.

FIDELIS IN PAUCIS.'

It has the FOUNDER's Creſt on it—'Two Dragons' heddes indorſant, raſyd, a Crownett abowt their Necks, langued, counterchaunged, ſet on a Wreathe Gold and Vert; the Mantlets Gueules doubled ſilver butoned Gold.'

(1) The following extract from Fulman's MS Collections in Corpus Chriſti College Library, is ſuppoſed to contain ſome anecdotes relating to this aged woman.

'Mother George—Oxford—Alice, daughter of Hugh Guies and Brigid Watkins his wife, born at Droitwich in Worc. upon All Saints day, being thurſday—which muſt be 1571—Sixteen years old and an half at Tilbury Camp 1588—At thirty ſhe married Thomas George at Magd. Pariſh Church in Oxford—By him had ten ſons and five daughters—among the reſt John George living in Oct. 1680, aged 76—at which time ſhe reckoned 39 Great Grand children.' Vol. XIV, f. 122.

Alſo in A. Wood's Life, written by himſelf, and publiſhed in 8°. 1772, at Oxford, the Editor gives this Note:

'Mother George was a very ancient Dame, living in Black Boy Lane, which leads from the north end of St. Giles's to Rats and Mice Hill: The perfect uſe of all her faculties at the age of 120 years, occaſioned a great reſort of company to her houſe. It was her cuſtom to thread a very fine needle, without the help of ſpectacles, and to preſent it to her gueſts, who, in return, gave her ſome gratuity towards her ſupport. In the latter end of her life, ſhe removed into St. Peter's in the Bailey, and died there by an accidental fall which injured her back.'

APPENDIX—Page 11, Note 6, CHANCELLORS——add

THOMAS de CANTELUPE was CHANCELLOR when Adam Feteplace was Mayor, Joh. Coleſull, Ric. fil. Nich. Prepos: and till I find out that year when they were Officers, I cannot aſſign another year for the Chancellorſhip of Tho. de Cantelupe—O. V. 43—that charter was written before 1263. I believe that he was Chancellor part of the year 1267, becauſe in his life 'tis ſaid he had liked to be killed in a fray between the Auſtrales and Boreales.

Pope Clem. V, hearing by rumours from the Dean and Chapter of Hereford, and by the Lett. pat. of K. Edw. —, the Archb. of York, 15 Biſhops, 11 Earls, and many Lords and Nobles, of the holineſs of Th. de Cantelupo Bp of Hereford, in order to have him canonized, the Pope orders them to enquire publicly in every one of their dioceſes concerning his life, an. 1307. So in REG. H. Woodlock, ep. Winton.

This anecdote of Dr. HUMPHREY is alſo recorded by A. Wood in the firſt part of this HIST. and ANTIQ. or ANNALS: ſee the year CIↃDLXVI —'The Qu. ſaid, "Dr. H. methinks this gown and habit becomes you very well, and I marvayle that you are ſo ſtraight laced in this point—but I come not now to chide."—The Qu. reflected upon Dr. H. for his preciſeneſs.'

Fuller in his Church Hiſtory, B. IX, p. 234, has related the ſame anecdote, but with ſome miſtakes, which are corrected by Heylin, in his Examen Hiſtoricum, p. 268. Heylin calls the Coins Double Piſtolets, and ſays they were 'all French pieces.'

P. 269, after l. 9—add P. 318 on Thomas Goodwyn note——

Goodwyn was doubtleſs the Independent Miniſter and Head of a College, of whom a curious and characteriſtic anecdote is related in No. 494 of the Spectator, one of Addiſon's Papers, who was Fellow of the College. The long Gallery mentioned in that account was taken down in 1770 for the improvement of the Preſident's Lodgings. It was uſually called the Election Chamber. In the Oxford Almanack for 1730, is an outſide view of it. It is known by the two doors in front, a window with three lights, and as many brackets underneath.——Goodwyn attended Cromwell, his friend and patron, on his death bed, and was very confident that he would not die, from a ſuppoſed Revelation communicated to him in a prayer, but a few minutes before his death. When he found himſelf miſtaken, he exclaimed, in a ſubſequent addreſs to GOD, 'Thou has deceived us, and we were deceived!' (Burnet's HIST. of his own Times, B. I.)

By Stat. cap. 47——the FOUNDER reſerves 'Cameram angularem ſuperiorem verſus Orientem et Boream, et aliam cameram ſibi contiguam ex parte Occidentali, infra Quadratum, pro filiis Dominorum.' This laſt appears to be the room where it is ſaid Prince HENRY kept his Court. The Chimney is richly ornamented with much carving in the ſtyle of thoſe times, and two large Eſcutcheons, one of the Royal Arms (Label omitted) the other thoſe of the College. The wainſcot appears from its irregularity to have had ſome removals: probably the apartment was enlarged for the accommodation of his Highneſs, and afterwards contracted again. The wainſcot of all the upper rooms on the north ſide of the Quadrangle is much more adorned with carved work than that of any room on the eaſt ſide. Probably theſe were occupied by the Prince's attendants.

P. 272, at the bottom——add P. 350, N. 86——add

There is a tradition that King HENRY VII was a Benefactor to the building of the Tower, and that he is commemorated on that account. The circumſtance of ſinging on this Tower on the day of that King's Commemoration ſeems to confirm the tradition. Beſides, there does not appear to be any other reaſon for celebrating his memory.
